Introduction

Purpose

This report provides a comprehensive overview of the current humanitarian situation, focusing on both operational environment factors and sectoral analysis. It aims to support informed decision-making for humanitarian partners and stakeholders.

About GANNET

GANNET is a Generative AI Initiative from Data Friendly Space, offering AI-powered tools built to make knowledge and real-time information accessible to our community in a resource-efficient and ethical way. It provides tools such as the GANNET Virtual Assistant and GANNET SituationHub to help humanitarian actors access, analyze, and utilize critical information for their operations.

GANNET SituationHub

The GANNET SituationHub is a generative AI-powered digital public good designed to identify and analyze humanitarian data from thousands of trusted sources in real time. By transforming complex data into clear insights, it enables faster, more effective response strategies and improved coordination among stakeholders.

GANNET Virtual Assistant

The GANNET Virtual Assistant is a verified chatbot designed for humanitarian quick decision-making. Built on cutting-edge Generative AI and trained with humanitarian expert-reviewed data, it provides real-time information. The GANNET Virtual Assistant facilitates rapid data access and synthesis for crisis response.

Methodology Overview

The Situation Hub's analytical process uses a structured Human-in-the-Loop workflow that combines automated analysis retrieval through GANNET Virtual Assistant, DFS's AI-powered humanitarian assistant, with expert review by the DFS analysis team. GANNET automates the extraction and generation of crisis-related insights based on structured prompts, which are aligned with a tailored analytical framework. These outputs are then reviewed, validated, and refined by analysts to ensure accuracy, contextual relevance, and operational utility. The workflow is organized into four key phases: planning and setup, ongoing operations, quality assurance, and system evolution, ensuring a balance between speed and analytical rigor.

Planning, Setup & Quality Control

In the planning phase, analysts develop a contextualized analytical framework, largely based on the Joint Intersectoral Analysis Framework (JIAF), and convert it into structured prompts for AI-assisted data extraction. These prompts are refined over time to improve output quality. Data sources are vetted for reliability, and translations are reviewed for accuracy. Using a centralized Content Management System (CMS), analysts review and curate AI-generated outputs, validate them against external sources, and make refinements to enhance clarity and relevance. The CMS enables collaborative editing and version tracking, ensuring outputs align with humanitarian needs.

Bias Mitigation

To minimize bias, the team diversifies data sources, cross-verifies information, and continuously evaluates the AI's performance. Analysts are crucial in identifying and correcting inaccuracies, especially in automated categorization. Future improvements aim to enhance source credibility checks and sentiment analysis, further strengthening the reliability of the Situation Hub's outputs.

Crisis Overview

The SituationHub landing pages use a standardized yet customizable template to deliver consistent, comprehensive crisis overviews. These pages integrate static content with dynamic data from sources like ACLED and DTM via open APIs, enabling interactive visuals with real-time updates. Regular reviews and verification with in-country partners ensure accuracy, while manual updates are used for sources not connected to APIs.

Media Monitoring

The media monitoring process has evolved from a manual, list-based approach to an AI-assisted system integrated into the CMS. This allows analysts to efficiently review, filter, and contextualize media narratives, while automation helps track emerging trends.

Overview

The following overview has been generated using the information available up to June 9, 2026. It provides a synthesized summary and key insights into the crisis based on the most recent data accessible at that time.

Summary

The Occupied Palestinian Territory is facing a severe humanitarian crisis, with both Gaza and the West Bank experiencing unprecedented levels of violence and deprivation. In Gaza, following the collapse of a brief pause in hostilities in March 2025, Israeli forces resumed intensive bombardment while maintaining a complete blockade that has now entered its eighth week, preventing all humanitarian aid and commercial supplies from entering. This has left Gaza's 2.2 million residents facing starvation as food stocks deplete, bakeries cease operations due to lack of flour and fuel, and nearly 90% of the population remains displaced with critical infrastructure almost entirely destroyed. A new U.S.-backed peace plan led to a pause in hostilities agreement coming into effect on 10 October 2025, raising cautious hopes for increased humanitarian access and a potential reduction in hostilities after months of relentless violence. However, despite the pause in hostilities, sporadic violations, limited aid entry, and continued displacement highlight the fragility of the pause in hostilities and the deep humanitarian strain that persists across Gaza.

Meanwhile, the West Bank has seen a dramatic escalation in military operations, particularly since the launch of "Operation Iron Wall" in January 2025, which has resulted in mass displacement of Palestinians and widespread destruction across refugee camps. Israeli forces have displaced approximately 40,000 people, with officials stating that residents will not be allowed to return for at least a year, while expanded checkpoints and military presence severely restrict movement between Palestinian cities.

International organisations and UN bodies have expressed increasing concern about systematic violations of international humanitarian law in the West Bank, including accelerating settlement expansion, land reclassification and forced displacement that multiple observers warn are driving de facto annexation dynamics. These concerns have intensified following the International Court of Justice's 2024 advisory opinion on the illegality of the prolonged occupation and the Israeli authorities' security cabinet decisions of 8 February 2026 expanding civil and administrative control over West Bank land and governance.

Key Insights

1. Gaza has entered famine conditions, with projections suggesting the crisis could spread to central and southern areas by September, affecting up to 640,000 people. Between May and September 2025, 470,000 people (22% of the population) were in Catastrophe/IPC Phase 5, over 1 million in Emergency/Phase 4, and the rest in Crisis/Phase 3—meaning the entire population faces severe food insecurity. By the end of September, famine conditions were expected to extend beyond Gaza City into Deir al-Balah and Khan Yunis. Humanitarian aid remains far below needs due to restrictions on access and delivery, driving acute malnutrition, especially among children, while health and nutrition services collapse under the strain.
2. Over the 2025 April–March period, ~71,000 children under five are projected to suffer from acute malnutrition, with ~14,100 of these being severe cases. Similarly, nearly 17,000 pregnant and breastfeeding women are expected to require treatment for acute malnutrition. The rapid rise of malnutrition in children, especially in Gaza City is a red flag: it both signals and drives higher mortality risks.
3. In the West Bank, "Operation Iron Wall" launched in January 2025 has led to the largest forced displacement since 1967, with approximately 40,000 Palestinians displaced from refugee camps including Jenin, Tulkarem, Nur Shams, and El Far'a, with Israeli officials stating residents cannot return for at least a year.
4. Israeli forces deployed tanks in the northern West Bank in February 2025 for the first time in 20 years, while establishing at least 20 new iron gates and numerous checkpoints throughout the territory, severely restricting movement between Palestinian cities and villages.
5. According to World Bank assessments (February 2025), reconstruction and recovery needs in Gaza require approximately US$53 billion, with housing accounting for 53% of damages, while commerce and industry represent 20%, and critical infrastructure including health, water, and transport comprising 15%.
6. The collapse of local food systems is near total, 98% of cropland in Gaza is reported as destroyed or inaccessible, and fishing has been banned or heavily restricted. Because of wartime blockades and displacement, the normal supply chains for food, fuel, water, and medical supplies have been disrupted or severed. In Gaza City and Khan Yunis, wheat flour prices have reportedly jumped ~3,000% compared to earlier months. Many households are resorting to extreme coping strategies: selling clothes, foraging or collecting trash, or going whole days without food.

Economy

Current Economic Situation

Gaza's economy has entered a complex collapse driven by the cessation of trade, closure of crossings, destruction of markets and factories, liquidity shortages, and sharp price surges that have drained savings and livelihoods [2].

Humanitarian partners report elevated but generally stable prices, with fresh products most volatile, and cash actors are calling for increased commercial truck access and fee reductions to support market recovery [10]. Kerem Shalom and Zikim remained the only operational entry points for humanitarian and commercial goods, with an offloading rate of 81% across all corridors between 11–17 May, but only about half of aid trucks from Egypt were able to offload at Israeli crossings in the first 18 days of May, constraining supply flows [10][3]. Between 7–20 May, UNOPS delivered more than 2.1 million litres of diesel into Gaza and distributed just over 2 million litres to support humanitarian operations, underscoring critical fuel dependence for basic services [10].

The World Food Programme estimated about 1.6 million people in Gaza (approximately 77% of the population) face high levels of acute food insecurity [9]. The UN's 2026 flash appeal sought $4 billion for 3 million Palestinians but had received only approximately 12% (about $490 million), leaving a major funding shortfall that is hampering relief operations [9][41].

UNRWA and nutrition partners reported a 21% increase in malnutrition admissions in January–April 2026 compared with the same period in 2025 [8].

The World Bank estimated reconstruction costs for Gaza at about $71 billion, while international proposals and UN resolution language linking reconstruction financing to security measures and Palestinian governance reform have raised concerns about conditionality and risks of prolonged external trusteeship [1][6].

On 26 May 2026, Prime Minister Mohammad Mustafa urged international partners to resume UNRWA funding and for Israel to release Palestinian tax revenues withheld on its behalf to alleviate the fiscal squeeze and support essential services and reconstruction planning [12].

Conflict Economic Landscape

Gaza's civilian infrastructure suffered extreme damage, with reports indicating around 90% destroyed, and Israeli control of crossings and large parts of Gaza limits the movement of goods and materials, constraining reconstruction and recovery [55][62].

Humanitarian access targets of 600 aid trucks per day are not being met, and aid deliveries frequently offload far below planned volumes, worsening shortages of fuel, medical supplies, and reconstruction materials [13][15][6].

Displacement is severe, with up to 1.9 million of 2.3 million people internally displaced and roughly 60% of the population estimated to have lost their homes [39][3].

Agricultural production has been devastated: the Palestinian Ministry of Agriculture estimates more than $4 billion in sector losses with over 80% of agricultural land damaged, and the FAO reports under 5% of Gaza's agricultural land remains usable [22][39].

The health system has collapsed, with dialysis access for approximately 250 patients at risk, around 11,000 people facing insulin shortages, haemophilia patients without treatment, and the destruction of much medical imaging capacity—all nine MRI units lost and only five of 18 CT scanners functioning [3].

WASH and sanitation conditions are critical, with severe shortages of engine oil (estimated at approximately 7,000 litres/month), shutdowns of critical stormwater infrastructure to preserve generators, and sanitary landfills remaining inaccessible, driving pest outbreaks and public health risks [10][15].

Reconstruction financing remains largely unrealized. Palestinian authorities are seeking international cooperation, development-bank support, and public-private partnerships, including talks with the World Bank, to mobilize reconstruction finance, but major pledged funds have not materialized: the Board of Peace's World Bank-administered Gaza fund reported no donor deposits, and commentators note only about 1% of the roughly $17 billion reportedly pledged had been transferred [17][62][63][3].

Over 30 reconstruction proposals have emerged since October 2023, but they lack coordinated funding, and several analyses warn that plans under-prioritize health, education, and social recovery alongside physical rebuilding [10][1][17].

Operational constraints further hamper recovery, as debris-removal machinery, landfill access, and other critical inputs remain blocked or restricted by security and administrative measures [10][1]. Regional disparities are evident: Gaza faces near-total physical and economic collapse, while the West Bank endures rising unemployment, movement restrictions, and pressures from settlement expansion that are reshaping local economic and planning realities [7][57].

Stability of Currency and Bank System

Gaza's economy is suffering declining liquidity, weak market resilience, and severe restrictions on crossings and aid deliveries, all of which are constraining commercial activity and reconstruction prospects [2][6][3].

The Palestinian Authority has struggled to pay public-sector salaries after Israel withheld large portions of Palestinian tax revenues, leaving workers with billions of dollars in unpaid wages by mid-2025, according to the World Bank [7].

Reconstruction financing and international aid are also being linked to political and security conditions in post-war planning, including disarmament requirements, complicating prospects for rapid economic recovery and reliable external funding flows [6].

Employment

Reporting in late May 2026 indicates a collapsed jobs market across the occupied Palestinian territory, with unemployment having more than doubled since October 2023, peaking at 35.2% in early 2024 and standing at 27.5% by end-2025 [7]. Nearly 40% of young Palestinians in the occupied West Bank holding at least a diploma are unemployed, according to the Palestine Economic Policy Research Institute (MAS) [7]. Israel indefinitely froze work permits for about 115,000 West Bank workers, with only a few permits subsequently renewed, compounding unemployment in the West Bank [7]. The Palestinian Authority's public sector has become an increasingly unreliable source of stable employment, with public-sector workers accumulating billions of dollars in unpaid wages by mid-2025, prompting many to avoid government jobs [7]. In Gaza, widespread destruction of markets, businesses, and factories, combined with blockade-related trade and cash-flow disruptions, forced hundreds of thousands to lose their income and produced an unprecedented labour-market collapse [2].

Humanitarian operations have also cut local jobs: World Central Kitchen dismissed more than 500 employees in Gaza and reduced daily cooked meals from 1,000,000 to 200,000, directly reducing employment in food-assistance operations [9]. Palestinian authorities are seeking to link reconstruction with job creation through international cooperation, development banks, and public-private partnerships, but reconstruction plans face major funding shortfalls and delays [17][1].

Politics

Governance Structures and Rule of Law

Since the adoption of UN Resolution 2803 (2025), an unprecedented international governance architecture has been built for Gaza, including a Peace Council reportedly chaired by President Donald Trump, an international stabilization force, a transitional technocratic administration, and periodic six-monthly reports to the Security Council [123]. The Secretary-General's report (S/2026/418) and the Mladenov briefing make reconstruction financing conditional on security measures, explicitly linking international funding to Hamas disarmament and Palestinian Authority reform [123]. Humanitarian and damage figures cited in this context include that about 80% of Gaza's buildings were destroyed or damaged, some 70 million tonnes of rubble were generated, more than 2 million people were described as in catastrophic conditions, and the United Nations requested a $3.72 billion emergency appeal in December 2025 [123].

Critics warn that new aid structures and reconstruction arrangements — including the Gaza Humanitarian Foundation and the US-backed "Board of Peace" — and their security linkages risk depoliticizing the Palestinian question, undermining aid neutrality, and converting relief into instruments of population management rather than addressing rights and self-determination [170]. Palestinian leaders and analysts have expressed concern that externally imposed bodies such as a proposed Gaza Management Committee and other trustee-style arrangements threaten the PLO's role and risk marginalizing established Palestinian national representation [135][137]. The strategy is being pursued across three explicit tracks — transitional governance, security restructuring, and political engineering — with identified risks including erosion of sovereignty, potential administrative separation of Gaza from the wider Palestinian polity, and the rise of technocratic actors prioritised for service delivery over popular representation [123].

In the West Bank, a draft Israeli law and related heritage initiatives emphasising "Jewish heritage" have been criticised as tools for incremental annexation by expanding Israeli intervention over planning, land, and antiquities while curtailing Palestinian Authority powers [166].

Political Freedoms and Recent Laws

UN briefings — notably the Mladenov briefing (21 May 2026) and the Peace Council report S/2026/418 — link post-war reconstruction to security arrangements and condition international funding on Hamas disarmament, a framing Palestinians say turns reconstruction from a right into a political lever [123]. Resolution 2803 is cited as formalising this shift by requiring state reform and coupling financing to security benchmarks, raising concerns about the emergence of trusteeship-style management and the structural separation of Gaza from national Palestinian institutions [123]. Analyses warn the post-war policy trajectory may prioritise technocratic or transitional administrations focused on service delivery and stability over representative political legitimacy [123].

In late May 2026, UN reporting indicated Israel was to be added to the UN list of parties credibly suspected of conflict-related sexual violence, and Israel announced it would sever ties with the Secretary-General's office in response [190][197][196]. Observers noted that the suspension of direct engagement with UN investigators — including cancellation of proposed visits — undermines channels for judicial and fact-finding processes and may limit accountability pathways [193]. A WHO resolution defining Gaza as occupied and mandating monitoring of health impacts was adopted, but critics argue such resolutions have not led to effective accountability or changed conditions on the ground [195]. Reports also noted the withdrawal of Palestinian Permanent Representative Riad Mansour's candidacy for UN General Assembly Vice-President, reportedly under US pressure [129].

Influence of Non-State Actors and Political Factions

Palestinian resistance factions have publicly rejected the Mladenov proposals, characterising the linkage of aid, fuel, and reconstruction to disarmament as political and humanitarian blackmail that deepens internal division and risks separating Gaza from the broader Palestinian national project [199][201]. Israeli political calculations — including tying ceasefire implementation and administrative deployment to the disarmament agenda and reported stalling of ceasefire commitments — further complicate efforts to decouple reconstruction from security-driven political outcomes [198][123].

The European Union has expanded sanctions on Hamas' Politburo and stated that disarmament is an essential prerequisite for progress, reflecting international policy pressure that ties security conditions to political and reconstruction processes [167]. Observers warn that new aid structures and initiatives risk politicising assistance, undermining humanitarian neutrality, and making aid delivery an instrument of external influence and control [170].

The Palestinian Centre for Political Studies (May 2026) called for a specialised Palestinian position room to follow international arrangements and reiterated that Gaza is inseparable from a comprehensive national political issue [123].

Public Trust in State Institutions

Analysts warn that the reconstruction–security linkage risks reframing reconstruction from a human right into a bargaining chip, reshaping political legitimacy, and deepening internal divisions — developments collectively described as producing a deep strategic crisis of confidence over the prospects for a stable political transition in Gaza [123]. The Mladenov briefing and the Secretary-General's report S/2026/418 are described as signalling a shift from ending the war to managing stability, creating an implementation gap and deepening Palestinian strategic distrust [123].

Observers note the Palestine Liberation Organization has been politically marginalised since Oslo and call for its renewal, including convening a new Palestinian National Council to rebuild representative legitimacy — reflecting internal concerns about weakened national institutions and authority [135]. At WUF13, Palestinian Minister Sami Hijawi called for stronger global support for rebuilding, reported sharply rising unemployment linked to the war, and said Palestinian authorities are in talks with international institutions including the World Bank to expand financial support for reconstruction [132].

Role of Marginalized Groups

The PLO Executive Committee reaffirmed commitment to democratic renewal and to completing preparations for Palestinian National Council elections and institutional reform before the end of the year, emphasizing inclusion of political forces, civil society, youth, and women to rebuild representation and legitimacy [159][135]. Palestinian analysts have warned that the current reconstruction framework risks redefining political legitimacy toward technocratic "management," turning reconstruction into a tool of political pressure, and marginalising broader segments of Palestinian society — including youth, women, and civil society — from meaningful participation in shaping their political future [123].

Security And Stability

Security Overview

UN Secretary-General António Guterres warned that civilian protection deteriorated in 2025, identifying the Occupied Palestinian Territory among conflicts with particularly high civilian harm and noting at least 20,000 Palestinians were killed or their remains recovered in Gaza during 2025 [214]. Security Council and UN briefings in late May 2026 highlighted continued ceasefire violations, ongoing Israeli strikes in Gaza, and warnings about a potential expansion of operations into Lebanon that risk further escalation and civilian harm [237][276]. OCHA and UN reporting described Gaza's humanitarian conditions as critical—scarce water, collapsed services, and near-daily attacks driving mass displacement and high civilian casualties since the October 2023 offensive [276]. UN and Peace Council documents (S/2026/418) warn that the continued armed presence of Hamas and other factions hinders safe, predictable restoration of services in Gaza, and that reconstruction is being linked to disarmament and security arrangements, posing risks of political and security re-engineering in the enclave [213].

Humanitarian operations face acute security threats globally and in Gaza specifically: more than 325 aid workers were killed globally in 2025, attacks on health care surged—including a marked increase in armed-drone strikes and follow-up "double-tap" incidents—and emergency medical response in Gaza has been severely degraded by recurrent strikes and restricted movements [214][216][227]. UN sources also reported restricted access for independent monitors and the International Committee of the Red Cross to certain facilities in the Occupied Palestinian Territory, limiting verification and accountability efforts [222][252].

Security Forces and Law Enforcement

The UN Secretary-General's annual report placed Israeli military, prison, and security services on its blacklist for conflict-related sexual violence, with UN investigators verifying 31 cases involving 14 men, 7 women, 9 boys, and 1 girl—13 incidents occurring in 2025 and 18 dating back to 2023–2024 [228][229][252][268][222]. The report attributed these abuses to members of the Israel Defence Forces, the Israel Prison Service (including Keter), and police counter-terrorism units such as Yamam, documenting violations including rape, gang rape, targeted genital violence, forced nudity, and degrading strip/cavity searches [228][229]. Israeli authorities denied or restricted access for UN investigators and the ICRC to detention facilities and had not demonstrated compliance with preventive measures under Security Council resolution 2467; the UN also warned that the dropping of charges against five reserve soldiers in the Sde Teiman case in March 2026 could entrench impunity [228][229][225]. Palestinian authorities and protection actors welcomed the UN listing as recognition of systemic abuses and called for accountability and prosecution of perpetrators [261][246].

In the West Bank, Israeli forces' operations, extensive movement restrictions—including an estimated 930 checkpoints and gates—and escalating settler violence are heightening protection risks; OCHA documented more than 50 attacks in one week and an average of six settler attacks per day in 2026, constraining Palestinians' access to services and undermining local protection mechanisms [218][259]. In Gaza, UNMAS conducted explosive-hazard assessments and risk-education activities and recorded 109 accidents since the October 2025 ceasefire, resulting in 265 injured and 49 killed, underscoring gaps in clearance capacity and residual security risks for civilians and responders alike [218][221]. Humanitarian partners also reported severe operational constraints, noting partially functional VHF communications and that only half of aid trucks from Egypt offloaded at Kerem Shalom in the first 18 days of May, limiting responders' ability to coordinate and reducing effective law-enforcement presence to ensure civilian protection [218].

Demography

Demographic Overview

The Gaza Strip's population is reported at roughly 2.1–2.3 million people [294][291][310]. Massive internal displacement characterizes the demographic picture, with approximately 1.9 million of 2.3 million Palestinians internally displaced, many forced to flee multiple times, and humanitarian partners describing nearly the entire population as uprooted and sheltering in makeshift settings [291][293]. OCHA reported approximately 1.7 million people sheltering in around 1,600 displacement sites, while partners recorded new displacement of more than 150 families between 16–17 May 2026 – 40 of whom required immediate emergency assistance – and returnee assistance figures reached 2,429 people following Rafah's reopening as of 14 May [300][296][292].

By late May 2026, Israeli forces effectively controlled about 60–64% of Gaza, and on 28 May Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu stated he had directed the military to expand that control to 70%. Humanitarian agencies and UN bodies warn that the remaining civilian population is increasingly compressed into a much smaller coastal area – commonly cited as roughly 30–40% of the Strip, with some local actors describing even smaller habitable pockets – intensifying overcrowding and displacement pressures [323][317][294][295][289]. Political statements and policy measures signaling planned population movement, including Israeli announcements of a "voluntary migration" scheme and the creation of a Defence-linked body to manage departures, have been repeatedly reported and criticized by rights bodies as measures that would produce permanent demographic change or forcible displacement if implemented [294][309][310].

The destruction of civilian infrastructure is extensive: UNICEF reported more than 97% of schools damaged or destroyed, leaving approximately 658,000 children without formal education for over two years, and UN agencies have documented widespread functional collapse of basic services [291][295]. Food and health vulnerabilities are widespread, with the World Food Programme reporting about 1.6 million people facing high levels of acute food insecurity, compounded by large-scale cuts to emergency food operations – including an 80% reduction in World Central Kitchen's cooked meals affecting hundreds of thousands of displaced households [305].

Socio-Cultural

Socio-Cultural Overview

OCHA's May 25, 2026 humanitarian situation report documented escalating settler violence, Israeli forces' operations, demolitions, displacement, and movement restrictions across the West Bank that are heightening protection risks and disrupting community cohesion [352]. Hundreds of Palestinians in Area C of eastern Jerusalem face imminent forced displacement after the Israeli Finance Minister instructed rapid implementation of long-standing demolition orders against Khan al-Ahmar – one of 18 Bedouin and herding communities affecting about 4,000 people – prompting high levels of fear and uncertainty among residents [361][352]. Since 2009, roughly 550 structures in these 18 communities were demolished for lacking Israeli permits, including 175 donor-funded humanitarian structures, undermining livelihoods and communal belonging [352]. During the reporting period, OCHA documented more than 40 raids and other operations by Israeli forces across the West Bank – including house searches, mass detentions, and temporary home evacuations – which disrupt access to services and erode trust between communities and authorities [352].

A sharp rise in settler attacks (more than 50 in a single week) brought the 2026 total to some 870 incidents across 220+ communities, with incidents such as arson, destruction of olive trees, cutting electricity, and physical assaults deepening intercommunal tensions and insecurity [351]. Israeli moves over cultural and religious sites – including a draft law reframing West Bank antiquities to emphasise a "Jewish heritage" narrative and an order to seize the Prophet Samuel shrine – are perceived by Palestinians and rights groups as instruments of creeping annexation that threaten Palestinian identity, historical memory, and social cohesion [355][410]. Challenges to the custodianship of Al-Aqsa and to Jordanian Waqf guardianship risk inflaming religious and national sensitivities across Palestinian and Jordanian communities in late May 2026 [370]. Restrictions on religious life extend to Gaza, where authorities blocked residents from performing the Hajj for the third consecutive year, reinforcing grievances linked to freedom of worship and community dignity [351].

Repeated and often multiple displacements in Gaza are dismantling normal social life – overcrowded shelters, loss of livelihoods, interrupted education, and rising protection risks for women, children, and older people – straining communal coping mechanisms and social networks [367][352]. Humanitarian and analytical sources warn that pressure on services and contested aid delivery weaken local governance and social structures, increase dependence on external assistance, and make access to aid itself a source of tension and power within and between Palestinian communities [340][357].

Gender Dynamics

On 29 May 2026, the United Nations added Israeli entities to its annex of parties credibly implicated in conflict-related sexual violence, a designation welcomed by the Palestinian authorities [405][373]. UN investigators documented 31 verified cases involving 14 men, 7 women, 9 boys, and 1 girl, with 13 cases occurring in 2025 and 18 in 2023–24 [359]. The UN report highlighted a systemic lack of accountability, including the dropping of charges in March 2026 against five reserve soldiers linked to a severe assault at Sde Teiman and continued denial of UN access to detention facilities for investigation [359][360].

The Palestinian Ministry of Women's Affairs warned that ongoing occupation, blockade, displacement, and restrictions have increased risks to women and girls – including sexual violence, exploitation, extortion, and exclusion – and called for international action to ensure protection and accountability [363]. Humanitarian sources report acute menstrual-hygiene shortages in Gaza, with nearly 700,000 women and girls lacking basic sanitary pads and facing unsafe, undignified conditions in shelters [378]. Local women's organisations continue protection and capacity efforts, for example through a legal awareness session for 15 women in Ain Arik on 12 May 2026 aimed at improving access to legal protection and services [341].

UN Women and related analyses have emphasised that women-led and women's rights organisations are underfunded and need flexible, multi-year support to deliver protection, GBV services, and participation in decision-making during the crisis [345].

Impact of Socio-Cultural Drivers on Aid

Cultural norms and social dynamics shape both the vulnerabilities communities face and the ways in which humanitarian assistance is delivered and received. The acute shortage of menstrual hygiene supplies — with nearly 700,000 women and girls in Gaza lacking basic sanitary pads and forced to use improvised cloth, face long queues for toilets, and lack safe disposal options — undermines dignity and the cultural acceptability of humanitarian responses [378][377]. Restricted crossings, active hostilities, and damaged infrastructure further constrain delivery and repair of culturally and technically specific items such as WASH spare parts and sanitary supplies, limiting the reach and appropriateness of assistance and increasing reliance on local coping mechanisms [367][381].

Displacement has disrupted social networks but also triggered informal coping strategies — families sharing food, women organising shelters, youth volunteering — and local initiatives such as the Aida Camp bazaar have reinforced community cohesion and provided economic opportunities [367][399]. UNICEF's 2026 Gaza WASH response supported around 1 million people with water, nearly 509,000 with sanitation, and over 603,300 with critical hygiene supplies, and piloted household waste segregation in four shelters that reduced waste by about 15–20% [381]. UNICEF is also strengthening accountability to affected people through accessible information, community participation, and confidential feedback mechanisms to adapt programming [381], though its 2026 Humanitarian Action for Children appeal of US$707.8 million remains only 36% funded, with an outstanding gap of US$451.8 million [381]. Protection partners conducted monitoring through eight focus group discussions and 130 key informant interviews across 16 neighbourhoods (1,155 people), and between 11–17 May provided mental health and psychosocial support to over 4,000 children and about 1,500 caregivers while delivering community-based protection activities reaching another 4,700 children and caregivers and managing hundreds of child protection cases [361].

Environment

Environmental Conditions

Gaza's environmental conditions are shaped by acute water insecurity, climate hazards, and collapsing infrastructure. UNICEF reported that some 54 partners provide roughly 24,000 cubic metres of water per day to people in more than 2,000 locations, with about 74% of households relying on these deliveries (late May 2026) [434][444].

Despite this, most families remain water-insecure (82%), with up to 70% unable to collect the minimum 6 litres per person per day for drinking and cooking [428][451][444]. Seawater desalination output declined from approximately 20,000 m³/day in March to 16,000 m³/day due to shortages of chemicals and spare parts [428][451][444].

Climatic hazards compound these pressures significantly. Approximately 800,000 people — nearly 40% of Gaza's population — live in flood-prone sites, and heavy storms in March turned streets into stagnant lakes and damaged shelters for more than 3,000 displaced people [429][437][425].

A heatwave last summer pushed temperatures above 40°C, elevating risks of dehydration and food spoilage for displaced populations with limited electricity or shelter protection [429][437][428]. Rising temperatures, collapsed sewage systems, and accumulating waste have driven rodent and insect infestations, heightening risks of diarrhoeal disease, hepatitis A, and skin infections in overcrowded, electricity-deprived displacement settings [429][437][428].

Environmental Challenges

The conflict has generated severe and compounding environmental challenges across water, sanitation, waste management, and public health. Humanitarian reporting highlights critical strain on sanitation and wastewater systems, with sewage overflows, limited wastewater treatment functionality, and restricted access to managed landfills; partners have prioritised requests for reverse-osmosis units, water-system spare parts, solid-waste compactors, and emergency repair kits for pipelines to prevent sudden service collapse [444][451].

Water-trucking operations at the Al Mansoura filling point were suspended following the killing of two contracted drivers on 17 April, forcing partners to truck an additional 2 million litres per day from desalination plants at an estimated extra cost of approximately USD 40,000 per day to cover 285,000 people [428][451].

UNICEF reported alarming accumulation of solid waste around displacement sites, with temporary dumps near southern Gaza nearing capacity and rising rodent and pest infestations worsening environmental health risks for displaced families [428][429].

Partners reported rising trends in skin diseases and acute watery and bloody diarrhoea, while environmental surveillance for March–April 2026 found no poliovirus detection across 12 consecutive months, though a rodent-associated disease risk assessment remains ongoing — underscoring immediate public-health threats linked to WASH and waste failures [444].

The broader environmental footprint of the conflict has also been quantified: new research estimates the Israel–Gaza war has generated approximately 33 million tonnes of CO₂e to date, with emissions from active military operations alone exceeding 1.3 million tonnes, adding a long-term climate dimension to the crisis [437][429][426].

Environmental Risks and Mitigation

Key near-term risks centre on WASH system failures and flood exposure. Severe shortages of engine and lubricating oil — estimated at about 7,000 litres per month and required to operate water and wastewater systems — have curtailed life-saving WASH activities and prompted the shutdown of the Sheikh Radwan stormwater lagoon on 11 May, raising near-term flood risk for the roughly 800,000 people living in flood-prone areas [425][444][424][451][437].

Accumulating solid waste, inaccessible sanitary landfills, and damaged sanitation infrastructure have driven rodent and insect infestations linked to rising public-health risks, including diarrhoeal disease, skin infections, and hepatitis A [428][444][425].

In response, UN agencies and partners have delivered three tonnes of rodenticides and 3,000 litres of pesticides and launched pest-control operations across more than 1,700 locations; however, they warn that a full response requires restored access to sanitary landfills and the entry of debris-removal machinery, trucks, and compactors [424][434][444].

Humanitarian experts and NGOs are calling for climate adaptation to be integrated into emergency response, prioritising resilient WASH systems, strengthened disease surveillance, and expanded sustainable energy — such as solar power — to reduce environmental and public-health impacts in the medium term [426][437][425].

Conflict

Overview of the Ongoing Armed Conflict

The conflict intensified after Hamas's 7 October 2023 attack and the subsequent major Israeli military campaign in Gaza, evolving into a prolonged, regionally escalating confrontation by mid-2026 [546][579]. Active operations are concentrated in the Gaza Strip, where Israel is reported to control roughly 60–70% of the territory and continues targeted strikes and territorial expansion, while the occupied West Bank faces rising settler violence and Israeli raids, and southern Lebanon has seen cross-border Israeli–Hezbollah exchanges and strikes in late May 2026 [524][538][543][531][573].

Despite a ceasefire declared in October 2025, strikes, raids and targeted killings have persisted into late May 2026, including Israeli operations that killed newly appointed Hamas commanders [524][579][546].

Gaza health authorities report cumulative casualties since October 2023 of over 72,900 killed and approximately 172,900 injured; since the October 2025 ceasefire, roughly 929 have been killed and 2,811 injured from subsequent operations, indicating sustained high lethality [579][525]. The conflict has devastated critical infrastructure, with approximately 90% of civilian infrastructure in Gaza damaged, UN estimates of roughly USD 70 billion needed for reconstruction, and widespread destruction of hospitals, water and electricity networks resulting in a near-collapse of the health system [582][513][523].

Humanitarian access remains severely constrained: OCHA and partners report movement restrictions, requirements to coordinate with Israeli authorities, recurrent strikes on populated areas, and aid-throughput targets of 600 trucks per day being met at far lower volumes, impeding deliveries and rescue operations [544][585]. Ambulance and civil-defence teams face persistent difficulties reaching the wounded and recovering bodies in heavily affected Gaza areas, increasing civilian mortality and limiting response capacity [579][555][560]. Attacks on health care and emergency responders and the increased use of explosive weapons and armed drones across the theatre have further compounded civilian harm and impeded aid delivery, as documented by UN, AOA and Insecurity Insight monitoring [513][506][489].

The UN verified multiple incidents of conflict-related sexual violence against Palestinians in 2025, involving 14 men, 7 women, 9 boys and 1 girl, raising acute protection and accountability concerns [507][548][521].

Conflict Stakeholders

Israel is the primary state actor conducting military operations in Gaza and the wider theatre. The UN Secretary-General's 2025 report added Israeli armed and security forces, including the Israeli Prison Service, to the list of parties credibly suspected of conflict-related sexual violence, citing verified incidents against Palestinians detained in Israel and the occupied Palestinian territory; cases date back to 2023 and continued denial of access to detention centres constrained comprehensive verification [521][558][535].

Israel responded by freezing relations with UN Secretary-General António Guterres, with Ambassador Danny Danon announcing a suspension of cooperation until the end of Guterres's term on 31 December 2026 [592][595].

Hamas remains the principal non-state armed actor in Gaza with significant territorial control, and Israel continues targeted operations against Hamas leaders, sustaining a security-first dynamic that shapes reconstruction, governance arrangements and political conditions in the territory [546][517][484].

Hamas has publicly accused UN Special Coordinator Nikolay Mladenov of incitement and demanded adherence to the ceasefire plan, while continuing to blame Israeli violations for delays in implementation [566][488].

On the diplomatic and multilateral front, UN Special Coordinator Mladenov presented a 15-point road map to the Security Council in May 2026, and the Peace Council report (S/2026/418) explicitly linked reconstruction, Israeli withdrawal and the deployment of an International Stabilization Force to documented disarmament of Hamas, making Hamas disarmament a central obstacle to progress [484].

Many states have conditioned troop pledges or limited contributions to the stabilization force on a deal for Hamas to disarm, leaving pledges stalled and some commitments limited to humanitarian components only [517]. This linkage risks shifting reconstruction and governance toward externally supervised "stability management," privileging security requirements over Palestinian institutional authority and potentially producing new local actors aligned with international funders [484].

Regional mediators — notably Egypt, Qatar and Turkey — have played an active role in arranging negotiating rounds, while the US and Pakistan have also participated in broader mediation efforts [488][569][596].

Peace Negotiations

Negotiations over Gaza's ceasefire and post-conflict transition remain active but fragile. The UN Peace Council submitted report S/2026/418 on 15 May 2026, and Nikolay Mladenov briefed the Security Council with a 15-point roadmap linking documented Hamas disarmament, a security transition, deployment of an International Stabilization Force and reconstruction [484].

Mladenov and the Peace Board have stated that the international stabilization force cannot begin operations until a second phase is agreed in which Hamas undertakes documented disarmament and Israeli forces begin withdrawal [481][484].

Regional mediators Egypt, Qatar and Turkey have been arranging negotiating rounds. Egypt invited a senior Hamas negotiating delegation led by Khalil al-Hayya for urgent talks in late May 2026 to try to salvage the ceasefire, after Hamas postponed a mid-May trip to Cairo following the assassination of a senior Izz al-Din al-Qassam commander [496][566][488].

Ceasefire adherence on the ground remains poor, with repeated violations and reported Israeli expansion of control in Gaza — from approximately 53% under ceasefire mapping toward an estimated 60–70% — undermining prospects for transition and reconstruction [496][481][471]. Broader efforts are further constrained by mutual distrust and linkage to wider regional negotiations, including US–Iran talks, limiting immediate political traction [488][569][596].

Conflict Outlook

The near-term outlook is marked by significant escalation risks and limited prospects for durable de-escalation. In late May 2026, Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu announced plans to expand Israeli-controlled areas in Gaza from the ceasefire-mapped 53% toward an initial 70%, following earlier expansions to roughly 64% of the enclave [552][545].

Hamas described the declaration as a dangerous escalation and warned it risks the forced displacement of Gaza's more than two million residents [552][545].

Any further reduction in civilian-accessible territory would likely trigger significant additional displacement and further exacerbate the humanitarian crisis, as essential services have already collapsed and critical aid shortfalls persist [470][484][545][552].

Concurrent Israeli operations in southern Lebanon and public threats from hard-line Israeli figures increase the likelihood of expansion on adjacent fronts, raising the risk that Hezbollah-related exchanges will further destabilize the Gaza theatre [483][504][518].

The wider US–Iran crisis and attacks around the Strait of Hormuz divert diplomatic attention and raise regional escalation risks that complicate prospects for a Gaza settlement and durable calm [470][501][500].

On the political track, Phase II steps remain fragile. International proposals that link reconstruction and Israeli withdrawal to documented Palestinian disarmament — as embodied in the Peace Council/Mladenov roadmap — make rapid, unconditional de-escalation less likely absent enforceable guarantees and credible monitoring [484].

Mediators, including Egypt, Qatar, and Peace Council envoys, continue to facilitate negotiations; however, multiple rounds of talks have been repeatedly postponed due to targeted killings and renewed military operations, while deep-seated mutual distrust remains a significant barrier to meaningful progress [488][566][484].

Displacement

Displacement Overview

UN estimates indicate around 90% of Gaza's more than 2 million residents have been displaced, equivalent to roughly 1.9–2.1 million people, with approximately 1.7 million living in roughly 1,600 displacement sites across the Strip [667][649][652][673].

Humanitarian actors describe this displacement as protracted since the 2023 outbreak of hostilities — UNRWA counted days 955–960 as of 20–25 May 2026 — with repeated waves of displacement exacerbating shelter overcrowding and straining services [633][624][603].

UNRWA reported renewed escalation with multiple evacuation and shelter-in-place orders during 20–25 May 2026, and humanitarian partners recorded the displacement of over 150 families from eastern Khan Younis and eastern Gaza City between 16–17 May 2026, 40 of whom were identified as requiring emergency assistance after fleeing with only what they could carry; an 18 May airstrike in Jabalya Camp reportedly damaged tents belonging to 35 families and displaced additional households [633][624][612].

Displaced populations are increasingly concentrated into shrinking habitable areas — reports indicate civilians confined to roughly 30–35% or less of the Strip — with displacement sites facing severe waste, sanitation, and rodent infestations that heighten public-health risks, especially for children [603][652][649][606].

In the West Bank, the revival of long-standing demolition orders and a planned 1 June 2026 tender for 3,400 settlement units in the E1 area place 18 Bedouin and herding communities — about 4,000 people — at imminent risk of forced displacement [647][624]. Escalating settler violence, averaging six attacks per day in 2026, has displaced thousands since January 2025 and led to the near-emptying of dozens of rural and herding communities [647]. Israeli officials' public discussion of "voluntary migration" has been met by rights groups and legal experts who warn that such measures and the conditions prompting departure risk amounting to forcible transfer under international law, while regional mediators — notably Egypt — have publicly cautioned against unilateral steps that would lead to population displacement [614][641][660][652].

Prospects for returns or durable solutions remain limited as reconstruction and resettlement plans are stalled, and humanitarian actors warn that temporary shelter footprints risk becoming permanent, complicating future recovery and repair of housing [634][636].

Living Conditions of the Displaced Population

Most families in Gaza remain displaced, sheltering in overcrowded tents, schools, or damaged structures across temporary and informal sites [624][673]. Accumulating solid waste, pest and rodent infestations, and large numbers of people living in flood-prone displacement sites — estimated at around 800,000 people — are compounding public-health risks and straining sanitation services [630][600][633][623].

UNRWA and health partners have reported rising ectoparasitic infections (scabies), rodent bites, chickenpox, and acute watery diarrhoea, and nutrition partners recorded a 21% increase in malnutrition admissions between January–April 2026 compared with the same period in 2025 [633]. OCHA and WHO warned that hospitals are largely non-functional or under extreme strain, with restrictions on fuel, medicines, and movement impeding medical care and humanitarian operations [624][633].

On water and sanitation, UNICEF reported that between 1 January and 14 May 2026, some 1,000,000 people were supported to access water, about 508,852 people accessed sanitation services, and over 603,300 people received critical WASH supplies [600]. As of 29 May, drinking-water distributions reached up to 1.5 million people depending on access, yet 82% of families remain water insecure and up to 70% cannot collect the minimum 6 litres per person per day; desalination output fell from 20,000 to 16,000 m³/day due to shortages of chemicals and spare parts [606]. The Al-Mansoura filling point remains inaccessible following a 17 April incident that killed two UNICEF-contracted truck drivers, forcing partners to truck water from desalination plants at an additional cost of about USD 40,000 per day to replace some 2 million litres previously collected at that point, affecting approximately 285,000 people [606][611].

Roughly 1.2 million people are reported to have lost their homes, and health, water, sanitation, and waste-management infrastructure have been heavily damaged [634][624]. Seasonal storms damaged shelters of more than 3,000 displaced people, and heatwaves further undermine habitability [606][623]. Child protection partners provided mental health and psychosocial support (MHPSS) to over 4,000 children and approximately 1,500 caregivers between 11–17 May 2026, with weekly averages of about 1,600 children and 670 caregivers continuing to receive psychosocial services [612][624].

In the West Bank, Shelter Cluster partners reached over 9,300 households (around 40,300 people) with shelter assistance between 1 January and 30 April 2026, even as demolitions and demolition orders — particularly threats to Bedouin communities such as Khan al-Ahmar — heighten the risk of forcible displacement [624][612].

Drivers of Displacement

Ongoing hostilities — including repeated strikes, tank movements, and shelling — continue to drive new and repeated displacement in Gaza [624]. Mass destruction of housing and essential infrastructure has left many without safe alternatives, with roughly 1.2 million people reported to have lost their homes and health, water, sanitation, and waste-management systems heavily damaged [634][624].

Worsening environmental and climate shocks — accumulated solid waste, rodent and insect infestations, heatwaves, and seasonal storms that damaged shelters of more than 3,000 displaced people, with around 800,000 people living in flood-prone areas — are further undermining habitability and increasing public-health risks [606][623].

Water system collapse also contributes to displacement pressure: desalination output fell from 20,000 m³/day in March to 16,000 m³/day, and the suspension of the Al-Mansoura filling point since 17 April — following the killing of two UNICEF-contracted truck drivers — forced alternative trucking at an additional cost of about USD 40,000 per day, constraining daily access for approximately 285,000 people [606].

In the West Bank, demolition orders and settlement expansion plans — notably in the EI area — place Bedouin and herding communities at acute risk of forcible displacement, with some 18 communities (about 4,000 people) directly affected and roughly 550 structures documented as demolished since 2009 [624]. Since the start of 2026, roughly 71% of approximately 400 structures demolished in Area C were agricultural, livelihood-related, or WASH structures, reflecting a pattern that systematically erodes livelihoods and habitability [647].

Escalating settler violence — with OCHA documenting some 870 attacks across more than 220 West Bank communities so far in 2026 (approximately six per day) — and conflict-related damage have driven growing shelter needs [624][647]. The Israeli authorities' announcement of a 1 June 2026 tender to construct 3,400 new settlement units further fragments territory and risks forced displacement [647].

The UN has documented conflict-related sexual violence and a systemic lack of accountability, which exacerbates protection risks for detainees, returnees, and displaced women and girls; Palestinian authorities and rights actors have called for accountability and access to justice for survivors [678][656].

Integration

Access to basic services and livelihoods remains severely constrained for displaced populations in Gaza and the West Bank. Protection partners delivered services to almost 11,000 people between 11–17 May 2026, including MHPSS to 8,259 people, legal aid to 219, referrals to 232, support to 341 persons with disabilities, and relief to 1,265 people; since the reopening of Rafah, partners have assisted 2,429 returnees, with 885 currently receiving follow-up protection services [624].

Child protection partners provide weekly MHPSS to about 1,600 children (including approximately 80 children with disabilities) and more than 670 caregivers, with weekly awareness sessions reaching approximately 380 children and 100 caregivers; over a recent week, cash and in-kind aid reached approximately 60 children and 12 caregivers, and 35 children received case management [612][624].

In the West Bank, movement restrictions, raids, and administrative measures are severely impeding access to education, work, and services, undermining integration prospects. In Hebron's H2 area, students faced repeated delays at the As-Salaymeh checkpoint, with 103 students unable to reach school on 11 May 2026 and similar disruptions recorded on 14 and 18 May [612][624]. The 17 May closure of Burin village further disrupted access to work, education, and services [624].

Escalating settler violence and demolitions are eroding social cohesion and long-term settlement prospects: since January 2025, violence has displaced thousands and led to the near-emptying of dozens of rural and herding communities, while threats to Khan al-Ahmar and some 18 Bedouin and herding communities (around 4,000 people) remain acute [624][647][612].

The planned 1 June 2026 tender for 3,400 new settlement units in the EI area is assessed as likely to further fragment territory and constrain durable integration for affected communities [647].

Humanitarian Access

Humanitarian Access Overview

As of 25 May 2026, OCHA reported that humanitarian operations are concentrated across the Gaza Strip and the West Bank (including East Jerusalem), with partners delivering shelter, protection, WASH, pest-control and food assistance amid widespread displacement and constrained services [705]. Key operational actors include OCHA, UNDP, UNICEF, WFP, the Logistics Cluster, Shelter Cluster, Site Management Cluster and protection partners, alongside local organizations and contested or emergent bodies such as the Gaza Humanitarian Foundation [705][687][689].

The Site Management Cluster reported about 1,600 displacement sites hosting roughly 1.7 million people (354,480 households), nearly 88% in makeshift sites (data collected 3 Feb–10 May) [705][699]. More than two million Gaza residents remain displaced and concentrated in overcrowded tents and shelters, increasing pressure on the remaining accessible areas [745][738]. UNDP led a pest-control response launched on 17 May targeting over 1,700 locations, delivering 3 tonnes of rodenticides and 3,000 litres of pesticides [705][699]. UNICEF reported reaching over 603,300 people with critical WASH supplies, with sector figures showing 1,000,000 people accessing water and 508,852 accessing sanitation; UNICEF's 2026 appeal (US$707.8 million) was 36% funded at the time of reporting [687].

Humanitarian delivery is heavily dependent on land corridors, with Kerem Shalom and Zikim remaining the primary crossings for goods and convoys. Logistics Cluster data showed variable offloading rates—only about half of trucks from Egypt could offload at Kerem Shalom in the first 18 days of May, with recorded offloading rates of 81% between 11–17 May [705][699]. Donor and bilateral modalities, including ambulance and medical evacuations and a floating hospital operating from Al Arish, augment land-based deliveries but cannot offset persistent corridor, regulatory and security constraints [727][705][699]. Maritime routes also remain blocked following the interception of the Global Sumud Flotilla and other solidarity fleets by Israeli naval forces in late April–mid May 2026 [702][728].

OCHA and partners report administrative impediments imposed by Israeli authorities—including movement coordination requirements for humanitarian teams and restrictions on shelter items and the approval of core WASH and medical imports—which humanitarian actors say must be lifted to scale responses [705][687]. Operational bottlenecks cited by partners include chronic fuel shortages limiting hospitals, water pumping and generators, rising transport costs, and reduced stocks of essential household and shelter items, undermining sustained operations [691][705].

Barriers to Humanitarian Access

Humanitarian access in Gaza remained severely constrained by ongoing hostilities, Israeli Defence Forces operations, evacuation orders, and damage to roads, crossings, hospitals and other civilian infrastructure, repeatedly disrupting delivery of food, fuel, medicines and medical supplies [688][698]. Security constraints remain acute: Israeli strikes, shelling and other hostilities repeatedly damage residential areas and humanitarian infrastructure, with partners recording displacement of more than 150 families between 16–17 May [705][701]. Humanitarian facilities and assets were themselves affected in early May 2026, with reports of a UN warehouse struck by an Israeli airstrike, an MSF team area impacted by tank fire injuring civilians, and an airstrike reported near multiple humanitarian facilities in Deir al-Balah, all undermining safe operations and staff security [702].

Administrative impediments from Israeli authorities prevented entry of water testing equipment and liquid chlorine supplies to hospitals and primary health-care centres, constraining infection prevention and WASH interventions [705]. UNICEF called on authorities to facilitate safe, sustained and predictable humanitarian access and to enable entry and approval of core items—including pumps, pipes, fuel and other essential supplies—required to stabilise water and sanitation services [687].

Maritime attempts to deliver aid were intercepted at sea, with the Global Sumud Flotilla and other solidarity fleets seized or stopped by Israeli naval forces in late April–mid May 2026, with participants reporting mistreatment in detention, further complicating sea-borne humanitarian routes [702][728].

In the West Bank, OCHA documented escalating access constraints from settler violence and demolitions, noting more than 50 settler attacks in one week and an average of six attacks per day in 2026, restricting movement and access to services [705]. Renewed concerns emerged that rapid implementation of long-standing demolition orders could forcibly displace communities; OCHA has documented roughly 550 structures demolished in affected communities since 2009 [705].

Humanitarian Access Gaps

Humanitarian access is severely constrained across Gaza, particularly where Israeli-controlled and restricted zones have expanded beyond the October ceasefire line—from 53% toward approximately 64%, with a stated plan to reach an initial 70%—shrinking space for civilians and aid delivery [738][742][751]. Humanitarians report that little aid reaches many civilians and that distribution is frequently dangerous and chaotic, undermining the effectiveness of current access strategies [738][708][756]. Operational constraints cited by logistics actors include designated restricted zones on maps shared with aid groups, blocked crossings and constrained regional supply routes that complicate deliveries and lengthen lead times [742][761][719].

Health-care access is critically degraded, with no fully functioning hospital across Gaza, rising infectious diseases, and attacks and other violence against health services and workers compounded by funding cuts that have dramatically reduced essential services [756][698]. UNICEF reported alarming WASH and environmental-health risks, including growing solid waste at displacement sites, limited or inaccessible disposal and landfill capacity, rodent and pest infestations, and constrained access to potable water as critical filling points (including Al Mansoura) have become inaccessible [714][756].

Food insecurity is acute: the World Food Programme estimates approximately 1.6 million people (77% of the population) face high levels of acute food insecurity, including over 100,000 children and 37,000 pregnant and nursing women [767]. Access to detained Palestinians and independent monitoring is also constrained, with the UN reporting that the ICRC has been denied access to detention facilities since 7 October 2023, limiting humanitarian oversight and protection interventions [726].

Information, Communication and AAP

Information Landscape

Humanitarian data collection in Gaza draws on a range of established systems. UNICEF reported that in 2026 an estimated 1,000,000 people accessed water, 508,852 accessed sanitation services, and 603,312 people were reached with critical WASH supplies, with its Gaza hotline answering over 85,000 calls and using feedback on unmet hygiene needs and irregular water supply to adapt WASH programmes [769]. OCHA's oPt situation reporting (25 May 2026) recorded that 54 partners provide approximately 24,000 cubic metres of water per day to more than 2,000 locations, with about 74% of households in Gaza relying on such deliveries, and that between 4–17 May partners distributed 15,343 hygiene kits, 2,448 dignity kits and 7,350 jerry cans, benefitting nearly 116,000 people [775]. Protection monitoring combined qualitative methods and community engagement: eight focus-group discussions and 130 key-informant interviews across 16 neighbourhoods reached 1,155 people, informing protection reporting and referrals [801][775]. Between 11–17 May, partners provided MHPSS to over 4,000 children and approximately 1,500 caregivers, delivered child-protection awareness activities for about 4,700 children and caregivers, provided individual case management to 56 newly identified high-risk children and continued follow-up for more than 3,000 active child protection cases [801][775]. Partners also supported the medical evacuation of 59 patients (including six children) to Egypt via Rafah, alongside 87 caregivers [775][801]. Mine-action reporting indicates that since the October 2025 ceasefire there have been 109 recorded explosive-hazard accidents causing 265 injuries and 49 deaths, based on UNMAS and partners' assessments [801]. Shelter and distribution monitoring shows partners installed 115 emergency shelters in Gaza and Khan Younis and the Rapid Joint Distribution Mechanism supported 55 households with emergency shelter and essential household items [775][801]. The SHCC/Insecurity Insight incident-monitoring approach underlines strict data responsibility, transparency and ethical handling of sensitive information to protect sources and inform collective understanding [774]. Operational reporting routinely identifies gaps that constrain both response and information systems — notably shortages of spare parts, fuel, transport and predictable funding — which partners flag as impeding sustained monitoring and programme delivery [775][801].

Communication Channels

Humanitarian actors and affected people rely primarily on phone-based hotlines, VHF radio networks, and face-to-face interactions including focus groups, key-informant interviews and community outreach at displacement sites and shelters [769][775]. UNICEF operates a hotline that answered over 85,000 calls and uses confidential feedback and community participation to adapt WASH and other programmes [769]. Connectivity in Gaza remains severely constrained, limiting humanitarian coordination; the VHF network is only partially functional due to security constraints and limited technical capacity, and the Emergency Telecommunications Cluster (ETC) worked with UNDSS and PRCS/ICRC on VHF recovery and a Communications Plan with technical inputs expected by 31 May 2026 [775][801]. Phone interviews and in-person visits (data collected between 3 February and 10 May) are used for displacement-site population estimates, but repeated internet restrictions and overall limited connectivity hamper regular, reliable digital reporting and information flows [775][774].

Barriers to Information

Movement and access restrictions — including fragmentation that prevents travel between the Gaza Strip and the West Bank, military closed zones, and requirements for humanitarian teams to coordinate movements with Israeli authorities — impede both information flow and aid delivery; only half of aid trucks from Egypt could offload at Kerem Shalom in the first 18 days of May, further constraining supplies and equipment needed for communications and services [775]. Explosive hazards and access insecurity have restricted safe assessments and monitoring, with 109 accidents recorded since the October 2025 ceasefire causing 265 injuries and 49 deaths, undermining safe access for technical recovery and debris removal [801][775]. Operationally, the WASH Cluster warned that severe shortages of engine oil (an estimated ~7,000 litres required monthly) and lack of spare parts are disrupting water, sanitation and wastewater services and emergency repairs [769][801]. Monitoring and accountability face political and institutional barriers: the United Nations verified 31 cases of sexual abuse in Israeli detention settings in 2025 and reported significant obstacles to UN monitoring in Gaza, including denials of International Red Cross access and lack of information from Israeli authorities demonstrating compliance with preventive measures [858][835]. Media and narrative barriers have also been noted, with analysts arguing that structural biases in Western media marginalize Palestinian testimonies and limit dissemination of local perspectives [818].

Misinformation and Rumors

Information flows in Gaza are constrained by repeated internet restrictions and the expulsion of some aid actors, which likely result in under-reporting and gaps in verified information and incident documentation [774]. Contested narratives about humanitarian delivery — illustrated by criticism of new aid structures such as the Gaza Humanitarian Foundation — have increased public scepticism over the neutrality, access and accountability of aid distribution [777]. Rights groups document large numbers of missing children and allege enforced concealments near aid distribution points, fuelling fear and uncertainty among relatives and civil society actors seeking reliable information [789]. Incidents affecting aid operations — for example the interception of a Gaza-bound flotilla and strikes reported near medical teams — generate competing media accounts that complicate independent verification of events and humanitarian access reports [814]. To strengthen information integrity and trust, UNICEF emphasises accessible information, community participation and confidential feedback mechanisms, alongside ongoing protection monitoring and community consultations by protection partners conducted in mid-May [769][801][775].

Accountability Needs and Transparency

Humanitarian actors and mediators have repeatedly called for transparent, verifiable monitoring of aid flows — including publishing truck-entry figures, protecting convoys and guaranteeing fuel — after plans for 600 daily truck deliveries were not met and only about half of trucks from Egypt were offloaded in the first 18 days of May, undermining civilians' ability to judge implementation of ceasefire commitments [798][776]. OCHA and partners report persistent access constraints that impede accountability and monitoring: aid workers face significant movement restrictions requiring coordination with Israeli authorities, and the VHF communications network remains only partially functional, limiting field coordination and feedback capacity [775][801]. The UN has documented a systemic lack of accountability for conflict-related sexual violence against Palestinians, verifying multiple cases in 2025 (including 14 men, 7 women, 9 boys and 1 girl) and highlighting a case where charges against five soldiers were dropped in March 2026, while urging Israel to allow UN access and conduct independent investigations — gaps that erode trust in remedial mechanisms and deter reporting by victims [768][835][772]. Denial of access to detention facilities for UN monitors and reports that detainees face threats discouraging complaints further weaken accountability and independent oversight [768][772]. Local engagement and accountability efforts exist at small scale — including legal awareness sessions for women and community-level protection and child-protection case management — but partners report that these services, feedback mechanisms and case-management capacities remain underfunded and insufficient to meet needs across Gaza and the West Bank [836][801].

Legal and Policy

Legal and Policy Framework

UN Security Council Resolution 2803 (adopted 2025), together with the Peace Council's first report (S/2026/418) and Nickolay Mladenov's briefing of 21 May 2026, frames Gaza reconstruction as conditional on security arrangements and Palestinian Authority reform. Critics argue this configuration risks shifting Gaza toward an international trusteeship model rather than restoring Palestinian sovereignty [874]. Palestinian representatives at the UN, including Ambassador Riyadh Mansour, have explicitly rejected approaches that separate reconstruction from political rights and called for balanced application of international law to all parties [874]. Palestinian institutions and international interlocutors are also calling for use and preservation of international legal instruments—including the ICJ advisory opinion of July 2024 and international prosecution mechanisms—to secure accountability and prevent reconstruction frameworks from conditioning Palestinian self-determination on performance measures [874][952].

The UN Special Representative on Sexual Violence in Conflict, Pramila Patten, presented the Secretary-General's 17th annual report in May 2026, listing Israeli forces as suspected of patterns of conflict-related sexual violence, verifying 31 cases (13 in 2025; 18 dating to 2023–24), noting denial of UN and ICRC access to detention facilities, and recording that sexual-violence charges in the Sde Teiman case were dropped in March 2026, raising significant accountability concerns [893][922][912].

Israeli legislative and administrative proposals cited in reporting—notably a draft law to transfer management of West Bank heritage sites to an Israeli "Judea and Samaria Heritage Authority" and offshore gas licensing plans—are described as measures that would alter the legal and administrative status of occupied territory and risk de facto annexation under international law [894][930]. OCHA's 25 May 2026 humanitarian situation reporting documents severe impediments to humanitarian access, restricted crossings, and widespread displacement and demolitions across the West Bank and Gaza that affect implementation of legal protections and delivery of aid [879]. At the civil-society level, Palestinian organizations continue to provide legal protection and awareness services—for example, a SPEED legal-awareness session for women in Ein Arik on 12 May 2026—to help individuals navigate domestic remedies and protection mechanisms amid weakening institutional safeguards [910].

Humanitarian Impact of Legislation

Humanitarian access across the Occupied Palestinian Territory remained heavily constrained in late May 2026 by Israeli movement restrictions, military raids, checkpoints, and administrative barriers that disrupt aid deliveries and internal movement between Gaza and the West Bank [881][879]. OCHA documented more than 40 raids across the West Bank during the reporting period (mid-late May 2026), involving house searches, temporary home evacuations, and prolonged closures that disrupted education, livelihoods, and access to services [881][879]. Only half of aid trucks from Egypt were able to offload at the Israeli-controlled Kerem Shalom crossing in the first 18 days of May 2026, and Kerem Shalom remained the only operational cargo crossing while Zikim was closed, constraining the volume and predictability of food, fuel, and medical imports [881][936]. Israeli policy measures since 2025–January 2026 have included bans and licence revocations affecting UNRWA and international NGOs, with authorities requiring detailed personal information on Palestinian staff and revoking licences for MSF and dozens of other organisations after they refused to comply [885][897]. Humanitarian partners further reported that Israeli authorities require coordination of humanitarian movements in some areas, imposing bureaucratic impediments to shelter, WASH, and public-health responses including pest-control and fuel deliveries [879][936].

These operational and administrative restrictions have contributed to a collapsing health response in Gaza: reporting in late May 2026 warned that 250 dialysis patients risk losing access, some 11,000 diabetic patients face insulin shortages, 110 people with haemophilia lack treatment, and roughly 76% of medical imaging equipment has been destroyed, undermining nondiscriminatory access to health care [890][898]. Human Rights Watch, UN reporting, and health actors have documented widespread attacks on health care and aid workers—including high numbers of aid-worker deaths since 2023—and have called for stronger legal protections, compliance with IHL, and repeal of laws that criminalise health workers for providing impartial care [917][931][928][885].

In the West Bank, revival of long-standing demolition orders and the opening of tenders for 3,400 settlement units in the EI area risk imminent forced displacement of Bedouin communities including Khan al-Ahmar and further restrict rights to housing, land, and access to services [879][933]. Administrative practices at checkpoints—such as demands for birth certificates or parental accompaniment that prevented students from reaching school in Hebron in mid-May 2026—illustrate legal and bureaucratic barriers limiting freedom of movement and access to education and essential services [879].

International Agreements Impacting the Crisis

Resolution 2803 established a Board of Peace/Peace Council, an international stabilization force, and a periodic reporting mechanism, but the Board faces a severe funding shortfall with roughly 1% of the approximately $17 billion pledged reported as transferred, undermining its operational capacity [874][890]. Provisions in the October 2025 Gaza agreement envisaged a multilateral peace operation, but plans for deployment and broader UN peacekeeping engagement remain stalled amid geopolitical divisions and limited UN capacity [905].

The International Criminal Court issued arrest warrants in November 2024 against senior Israeli officials, creating an active judicial accountability track [889]. The International Court of Justice and the UN General Assembly have also applied pressure—characterising the occupation as unlawful and issuing a GA demand to end the occupation by September 2025—with commentators and some Member States calling for measures such as arms embargoes and economic pressure [902]. UN Secretary-General reporting and UN mechanisms have placed Israeli entities on the list of parties suspected of conflict-related sexual violence, a development explicitly welcomed by the Palestinian Ministry of Women as requiring accountability [913][893]. The Government of Israel has publicly rejected those UN findings, suspended substantive cooperation with the Secretary-General's office, and denied UN and ICRC access to some detention facilities, restricting international investigative avenues [887][893].

Humanitarian and operational frameworks have been further constrained by an Israeli ban on UNRWA operations in areas under Israeli jurisdiction and restrictive conditions on NGOs, while WHO and other UN bodies adopted monitoring and reporting mandates on health in the occupied Palestinian territory [885][895].

Limitations of Current Policies

International policy signals risk turning reconstruction into conditional trusteeship that links Gaza recovery to political and security reforms, transforming the right to self-determination into performance-conditioned arrangements—a trend flagged in analyses of Resolution 2803 and recent Peace Council briefings in May 2026 [874]. Agreements and international mechanisms lack effective implementation and monitoring: mediators and the Peace Council have been criticised for failing to ensure sustained border openings, measure and publish truck entry data, and protect convoys, rendering formal commitments ineffective for civilians on the ground [880][874]. Overall, international resolutions and policy statements frequently remain disconnected from practice, normalising monitoring and reporting without delivering enforceable measures that change access, protection, or accountability outcomes for Palestinians [895][882].

Humanitarian access remains chronically insufficient: the planned 600 trucks-per-day protocol has not been met, and critical service delivery is failing as a result [880][881]. WASH operations face severe fuel shortages (the WASH Cluster estimates approximately 7,000 litres per month needed), with infrastructure shutdowns—including the Sheikh Radwan lagoon closed on 11 May—and inaccessible sanitary landfills causing pest outbreaks [879][890]. Severe funding shortfalls and donor austerity have reduced lifesaving operations, with humanitarian kitchens cutting meal provision by around 80% (from approximately 1,000,000 to approximately 200,000 daily meals), exacerbating dependence on inconsistent cross-border access and undermining response adaptability [886].

Administrative and security conditions imposed by Israeli authorities—including requirements to coordinate movements, restrictive vetting or data demands for staff, bans or threats to NGOs, and measures limiting UNRWA operations—have further impeded humanitarian actors and curtailed operational space [879][885][889]. Accountability and enforcement mechanisms remain weak: UN reporting documents credible allegations of conflict-related sexual violence and a systemic lack of investigations or access to detention sites, while international monitoring and accountability for attacks on health care remain limited despite extensive documentation of incidents in 2025 [922][893][917][935].

Food Security and Livelihoods

Access to Food and Market Functionality

Market supplies in Gaza remain constrained, with commercial and humanitarian market assessments reporting elevated but generally stable prices while fresh products show high volatility, limiting normal market recovery [1010]. Crossing restrictions and reduced commercial imports are limiting availability and recovery, and the Cash Working Group (CWG) has advocated for increased commercial truck entries, reduced fees on essential commodities, and a better import balance to stabilise markets [1010][969]. The humanitarian protocol target of 600 trucks per day has not been met in practice, with actual volumes reported below one-third (approximately 38%) of pre-war levels, constraining market resupply and staple availability [969]. Purchasing power and liquidity have collapsed amid massive market and labour-market losses, driving sharp price surges, with reports that one in five families survives on a single small meal per day and caregivers reducing rations for children [962][964]. A concurrent cash-flow crisis — scarcity of cash, banking disruptions, and exorbitant commissions — has prevented many people and traders from accessing funds, compounding food insecurity and daily survival needs [962]. Market disruption has pushed prices to unaffordable levels, with reports of sheep priced above 15,000 ILS and meat at approximately USD 80–115/kg, further eroding purchasing power [979][962].

Coping Mechanisms

Households in Gaza are reducing food consumption and meal frequency, with many adults — particularly mothers — skipping or cutting their own meals to prioritise children, and field reports indicating one in five families surviving on only one snack per day [964]. Families have resorted to selling livestock early or slaughtering animals for food, and repeated displacement has depleted savings and productive assets while stripping households of cooking tools and basic possessions [979][962][974]. Primitive indoor cooking resulting from displacement has caused fires, increasing protection and psychosocial risks, and prompting scaled-up child protection and cash interventions to reduce exposure to negative coping mechanisms [1015][974][973]. Reductions in large-scale food assistance — including World Central Kitchen cutting daily cooked meals by approximately 80% (from 1,000,000 to 200,000) and dismissing over 500 local staff — have increased the risk of famine for many displaced households who had been dependent on such assistance for basic meals [964][1015]. The UN 2026 flash appeal sought USD 4 billion for 3 million Palestinians but had received only roughly 12% (~USD 490 million), triggering protests in Deir el-Balah and further constraining humanitarian food delivery [964]. Since the Rafah reopening, partners have assisted return movements — with 2,429 returnees supported and 885 receiving follow-up protection services — reflecting mobility linked to the crisis and relief access dynamics [1010].

Livelihood Disruption

Large-scale destruction of markets, businesses, and factories has caused thousands of business closures and mass unemployment, sharply depleting savings and reducing household purchasing power across Gaza and the West Bank [962]. Since 2021, the Palestinian public sector has faced a salary crisis; by mid-2025, public-sector workers had accumulated billions in unpaid wages, undermining a key source of stable employment and prompting avoidance of government jobs [992]. The collapse in local labour markets is also affecting future prospects: graduates face a contracted job market, rising unemployment, and increasing out-migration as many seek work abroad or in informal, lower-paid jobs [992]. In the West Bank, movement restrictions, raids, and targeted demolitions have further disrupted livelihoods in Area C: OCHA documented more than 40 raids during the reporting period and reports that, since the start of 2026, approximately 71% of roughly 400 structures demolished in Area C for lacking Israeli permits were agricultural, livelihood-related, or water and sanitation structures — including one incident in which 18 of 19 structures demolished were livelihood-related — causing significant financial losses to affected households [1010].

Impact on Agricultural Activities and Production

The agricultural sector in Gaza has been devastated. An FAO report from October 2024 found approximately 67.6% of agricultural land damaged, 70% of poultry farms destroyed, and over 71% of gardens and fruit trees affected, while local authorities report more than 80% of agricultural land destroyed and direct losses across 15 vital sectors exceeding USD 33 billion [979]. The Palestinian Ministry of Agriculture estimates total agricultural sector losses exceeding USD 4 billion [979]. FAO and satellite analysis further indicate that less than 5% of Gaza's agricultural land remains usable, and hundreds of greenhouses in Rafah and Khan Younis — once supplying over 40% of the Strip's fresh vegetables — have been razed and topsoil confiscated [988]. Livestock numbers have collapsed: sheep and goats declined from approximately 60,000 to roughly 3,000, dairy cattle fell from around 3,000 to just two or three animals, and pre-war calf imports of roughly 3,000 per month have effectively ceased [979]. Primary drivers include direct shelling of barns and farms, loss of feed and water, shortages of veterinary medicines, forced slaughter in the early months of the war, and continuing restrictions on live-animal imports that have undermined meat and dairy production [979]. Damage to markets, slaughterhouses, and transport infrastructure has reduced market functionality and eliminated livelihoods for many rural and peri-urban producers, constraining future food production and rural income recovery [979][1010]. Ongoing displacement, repeated access restrictions, and insecurity have left farmers unable to reach or tend their fields, making large agricultural zones inaccessible or abandoned and further disrupting planting, harvesting, and local supply chains [967][988].

Food and Livelihood Needs and Current Response

Humanitarian partners provided general food assistance in May, with 122,000 households (440,000 people) receiving parcels consisting of one 25-kg flour bag and 2.5 kg of high-energy biscuits, covering approximately 75% of minimum caloric needs with additional calories supplied through other modalities [1010][973]. As of 13 May, partners were preparing and serving roughly 1 million meals per day through 103 kitchens to almost 1,800 locations, though cooked-meal production has been scaled down due to funding constraints while responders seek to diversify assistance toward more cash and livelihood support [973][1010]. Bread production is supported through subsidized bakeries, community ovens, and flour distributions, producing at least 300 metric tons of bread daily — approximately 36% of the Strip's estimated bread needs — with 28 subsidized bakeries producing roughly 130,000 two-kilogram bundles per day (approximately 80% sold at a subsidized price of 3 NIS through 168 contracted retailers and approximately 20% distributed free to shelters) [973][1010]. UNOPS delivered and partners distributed just over 2.1 million litres of diesel into Gaza between 7–20 May to support humanitarian operations and sustain fuel-dependent food and water services [1010]. Coverage gaps remain large: approximately 1.6 million people in Gaza (roughly 77% of the population) face high levels of acute food insecurity, and OCHA has warned that funding shortfalls are severely hampering basic relief operations, with the UN 2026 flash appeal for 3 million Palestinians having received only approximately 12% (~USD 490 million) at reporting [964][1051]. Scaling up local food production — including home gardening with seedlings, technical advice, seed-saving, and compost — and livelihoods remains constrained by lack of inputs, technical support, and restricted access; partners identify timely, unrestricted entry of agricultural inputs through commercial and humanitarian channels and support for local importers as critical gaps to restart sustainable livelihoods at scale [1010][973].

Education

Learning Environment and Facility Conditions

Over 97% of schools in Gaza have been damaged or destroyed, leaving some 658,000 children without formal learning for more than two years [1070][1054]. Universities including the Islamic University of Gaza, AlAzhar, and Allsraa have been razed, eliminating tertiary education capacity for tens of thousands of students [1070]. Many schools that remain standing have been repurposed as overcrowded shelters, with entire classrooms hosting dozens of displaced people, undermining privacy, routine, and the feasibility of inschool learning [1053][1055][1052][1056][1070]. Schools and UNRWA installations have also been directly affected by evacuation and shelterinplace orders, further constraining the use of educational facilities [1055]. Airstrikes and nearby strikes have damaged or threatened school and humanitarian facilities, including a strike near five humanitarian facilities in Deir alBalah and an 18 May strike that damaged 35 families' tents in Jabalya Camp, further undermining safe learning environments [1069][1053]. In the West Bank, checkpoint restrictions and delays have disrupted students' physical access to schooling, with repeated incidents at As Salaymeh checkpoint where approximately 100 students faced demands for birth certificates or parental accompaniment, and 103 students were unable to reach school on 11 May, with similar incidents on 14 and 18 May [1052][1053]. Prolonged Israeli raids and temporary village closures also disrupted learning environments—a 17 May raid on Burin closed all village entrances for nearly 19 hours, forcing some schools to postpone exams and suspend classes [1053]. Settler actions have further blocked school access, including a barbedwire fence that prevented more than 50 children in Umm AlKheir from entering their school for over two weeks and the reported demolition of a school in the northern Jordan Valley [1060]. Longerterm data indicate that up to 20% of West Bank schools were closed during the 2023/24 academic year due to military operations or settler violence, producing learning losses of up to three months for affected children [1060]. Access constraints, insecurity, and administrative impediments continue to hinder the delivery of education services and partner activities across the occupied Palestinian territory [1052][1053].

Access to Education and Barriers

Beyond physical destruction of facilities, a range of compounding barriers is preventing children from accessing education. Acute WASH failures, rodent infestations, and outbreaks of skin and diarrhoeal diseases in displacement sites are intensifying barriers to attendance and safe learning in Gaza, with partners reporting increases in ectoparasitic infections, rodent bites, and acute watery diarrhoea in May 2026 [1055][1059][1064]. Fuel shortages and rising transportation costs are further constraining schooling and education operations by limiting mobility for students, families, and staff, and reducing the capacity of education and protection partners to maintain outreach and services [1052]. Displacement, economic strain, and protection concerns have also driven social barriers to girls' education: reports indicate a rise in child marriage amid the crisis, with Supreme Shariah Court data showing that 20.6% of recorded marriages in 2024–2025 involved girls under 18, trends that risk increased school dropout for girls [1057][1058].

Education Needs and Current Response

In response to the near-total collapse of Gaza's education system, UNRWA opened a new Temporary Learning Space (TLS) on 20 May 2026 at a displacement site south of Khan Younis; within a week, 1,600 children had registered, with the TLS established in collaboration with education cluster partners [1055]. Between 11–17 May, partners provided Mental Health and Psychosocial Support (MHPSS) to over 4,000 children and approximately 1,500 caregivers [1053], with child protection partners reporting an average of approximately 1,600 children and more than 670 caregivers reached weekly through MHPSS and child-friendly activities [1052]. However, coordination and funding remain insufficient to restore safe, continuous learning at scale amid ongoing displacement and infrastructure destruction [1055][1053][1070]. Priority needs and gaps include large-scale rehabilitation of damaged schools and higher-education facilities, expansion of Temporary Learning Spaces and non-formal learning where schools are unusable, recruitment and payment of trained teachers, provision of learning materials, and integrated psychosocial support for children and caregivers. Partners report urgent shortages of funding, fuel, transport, and operational supplies to sustain outreach, home visits, and child-friendly spaces [1053][1052][1063].

Health

Availability and Access to Healthcare Services

Gaza's health system has effectively collapsed under the weight of sustained conflict. WHO has documented more than 900 attacks on health facilities since October 2023, leaving approximately 84% of healthcare facilities damaged or destroyed, with only about half of 36 hospitals partially functioning and none operational in northern Gaza [1123][1158]. Critical medical shortages include 250 people on dialysis at risk of losing access to treatment, 11,000 diabetic patients facing insulin shortages, and 110 people with haemophilia lacking essential care. Medical imaging capacity is heavily degraded, with approximately 76% of equipment destroyed, all nine MRI units lost, and only five of 18 CT scanners functioning [1128].

AlAqsa Martyrs Hospital reported generator failures and severe spareparts shortages that have forced the suspension of more than 50% of services, threatening continuity of surgery, dialysis, ICU and laboratory functions for a population of more than half a million people [1138].

Between 11–17 May, partners supported the medical evacuation of 59 patients (including six children) and 87 caregivers via Rafah to Egypt, and provided clinical consultations across 181 reporting sites [1119][1118]. Infection prevention and control trainings were completed for over 400 clinical staff across five major hospitals and more than 100 environmental cleaners and emergency medical services personnel, though hospitals and primary health centres continue to report shortages of water-testing equipment and liquid chlorine due to administrative impediments to imports and humanitarian access [1118][1119][1125]. Only half of aid trucks from Egypt could offload at Israeli-controlled crossings in the first 18 days of May 2026, constraining delivery of medicines, fuel and medical supplies [1128][1119].

WASH partners provide roughly 24,000 cubic metres of water per day to over 2,000 locations—deliveries that approximately 74% of Gaza households rely upon—yet average household water availability remains at only approximately 4.5–6 litres per person per day, exacerbating public health risks [1118][1119][1139]. In the West Bank, mobile clinics remain a primary lifeline for isolated communities; Medical Aid for Palestinians' mobile teams have reached over 33,000 Palestinians across 22 communities since 2025, while settlement expansion, checkpoints and settler violence continue to restrict movement to hospitals and clinics and deter patients and health workers from travelling [1154][1168]. On 25 May, the Palestinian Prime Minister met with ICRC representatives to press for intensified field hospitals, facilitated entry of medicines and medical supplies, and increased medical evacuations for wounded Palestinians requiring treatment outside the Strip [1145].

Disease Outbreaks

Between 11–17 May, reportable diseases accounted for 21.4% of consultations across 181 reporting sites, with increasing trends in skin diseases, acute watery diarrhoea and bloody diarrhoea, while acute respiratory infections declined [1119]. UNRWA medical surveillance teams additionally reported rising ectoparasitic infections (including scabies), rodent bites and chickenpox among children and older groups [1125]. WHO environmental surveillance for March–April 2026 returned all samples negative for poliovirus, marking 12 consecutive months without detection pending an OBRA desk review [1119].

Severe WASH-related risks are driving and amplifying disease transmission. UNICEF reported that 82% of families remain water insecure, with up to 70% unable to collect the minimum 6 litres per person per day for drinking and cooking [1122][1139]. Seawater desalination output fell from approximately 20,000 m³/day in March to 16,000 m³/day due to shortages of chemicals and spare parts, and the Al Mansoura filling point has been inaccessible since a 17 April attack that killed two UNICEF-contracted drivers, necessitating costly trucking of approximately 2 million litres per day at around USD 40,000/day [1122][1139]. Severe shortages of engine oil—estimated at roughly 7,000 litres needed monthly—continue to disrupt critical water and wastewater operations and prompted the shutdown of the Sheikh Radwan stormwater lagoon on 11 May, raising flooding and public health risks [1119][1146].

The UN and partners deployed a rodent control campaign—three tonnes of rodenticides and 3,000 litres of pesticides across approximately 1,700 sites—but access to sanitary landfills and debris-removal equipment remains blocked, sustaining conditions for pest infestation and disease transmission [1146][1119]. Shortages of water-testing equipment and liquid chlorine in hospitals and primary health centres, linked to administrative impediments on imports, further weaken prevention and response capacity [1119]. Multiple UN agencies warn that damaged sanitation, overcrowding, disrupted waste management and constrained fuel and supply access are collectively driving escalating risks of diarrhoeal, skin and rodent-associated diseases [1122][1118][1125].

Health System Challenges

Gaza's health system has effectively collapsed under repeated attacks on facilities, damage to infrastructure, fuel and supply blockades, and mass displacement, producing widespread service failure and surge needs [1143][1123]. Approximately 84% of healthcare facilities have been damaged or destroyed, with some sources citing approximately 1,800 facilities affected since October 2023, and WHO has recorded more than 900 attacks on health infrastructure since that time [1158]. Violence against healthcare in 2025 and ongoing hostilities have driven workforce losses, facility attacks and supply-chain disruption; local health actors report cumulative high losses among health personnel since October 2023, further weakening service delivery capacity [1143][1149]. The Safeguarding Health in Conflict Coalition documented widespread incidents affecting health services and health workers, contributing to reduced functionality and staffing [1143].

Repeated damage to roads, crossings, warehouses and power infrastructure, combined with restrictions on fuel and imports, have halted or degraded hospital operations, cold chains and pharmaceutical supplies [1117][1138]. Generator failures at facilities such as AlAqsa Martyrs Hospital have pushed services into a "high-risk phase," with over 50% of hospital services suspended and the facility serving more than half a million people [1138]. Only half of aid trucks from Egypt could offload at Israeli-controlled crossings in the first 18 days of May 2026, directly constraining the delivery of medicines, fuel and medical supplies needed to sustain services [1128][1119].

Water insecurity compounds health system pressure: UNICEF reported 82% of families remain water insecure, desalination output fell from approximately 20,000 to 16,000 m³/day due to shortages of chemicals and spare parts, and hospitals and primary health centres lack water-testing equipment and liquid chlorine due to administrative impediments on imports [1122][1119]. Sanitary landfills remain inaccessible, undermining pest-control efforts and increasing public health risks in displacement sites [1128]. Reconstruction and recovery financing remain inadequate, with multilateral mechanisms reporting severe funding shortfalls that undermine plans to restore health infrastructure and services [1128][1133].

Mental Health and Psychosocial Support (MHPSS)

Community-based psychosocial support is the primary MHPSS modality in the occupied Palestinian territory, complemented by recreational and structured support activities and parenting sessions [1119][1118]. On average each week, child protection partners provide MHPSS to roughly 1,600 children (including about 80 children with disabilities) and more than 670 caregivers [1119][1118].

During the reporting period of 11–17 May 2026, protection partners provided MHPSS—including psychological first aid and individual and group counselling—to 8,259 people, while humanitarian actors overall reported providing MHPSS and other protection services to more than 10,000 people [1119][1118][1141]. Child protection partners provided MHPSS to over 4,000 children and approximately 1,500 caregivers, and conducted awareness and community-based protection activities reaching an additional approximately 4,700 children and caregivers [1119][1118]. Case management and follow-up during the same period included 56 newly identified high-risk children receiving individual case management, continued follow-up for more than 3,000 active child protection cases, and 35 children receiving case management support in the past week [1119][1118]. Inclusive support reached approximately 80 children with disabilities on average weekly, with 341 persons with disabilities receiving other support during 11–17 May 2026 [1119][1118]. Partners also delivered staff-care support to 25 responders during this period [1119][1118][1141].

Partners have repeatedly flagged critical gaps in MHPSS delivery, including shortages of trained caseworkers and MHPSS specialists, lack of accessible safe spaces and psychosocial materials, fuel and transport constraints, and limited operational funding and supplies [1119][1118][1141]. At the local level, the Palestinian Women's Development Association integrated psychological and social support with legal awareness sessions for women in Ein Arik on 12 May 2026, illustrating community-level integration of MHPSS into protection and legal programming [1175].

Health Needs and Current Response

The most urgent health priorities in Gaza include conflict-driven infectious disease, surge in basic clinical needs, and life-threatening shortages in chronic care. Nutrition partners recorded a 21% increase in malnutrition admissions between January–April 2026 compared with the same period in 2025 [1125]. Essential chronic-care needs—dialysis for people with kidney failure, insulin for approximately 11,000 diabetic patients, and treatment for 110 people with haemophilia—face critical shortages, while lack of safe water and sanitation is driving disease transmission and ectoparasitic outbreaks across displacement sites [1118][1119][1125][1128][1135].

Humanitarian health services in late May included medical evacuations to Egypt, clinical consultations across 181 reporting sites, infection prevention and control training for over 400 clinical staff and 100+ support staff, and psychosocial/MHPSS support to more than 10,000 people through partner networks [1118][1119][1141]. WASH-health support remains a central lifesaving activity: 54 partners deliver about 24,000 m³ of water per day to over 2,000 locations, UNICEF reports reaching up to 1.5 million people with drinking water depending on access conditions and supporting approximately 1.1 million children with emergency WASH actions, and hygiene and dignity kit distributions in early-to-mid May benefited almost 116,000 people [1119][1122].

Critical operational gaps undermine response scale-up. The Al Mansoura filling point has been inaccessible since 17 April following the killing of two UNICEF-contracted drivers, with partners trucking replacement volumes at approximately USD 40,000 per day [1122][1118]. Health facility capacity is severely constrained by attacks, damage and equipment losses, with repeated generator failures threatening continuity of surgeries, dialysis and intensive care [1123][1128][1158]. Reconstruction and recovery financing remain inadequate, with UNICEF's 2026 appeal only approximately 36% funded and multilateral reconstruction mechanisms reporting severe funding shortfalls undermining plans to restore health infrastructure [1128][1133][1139][1122].

Coordination efforts in late May include a 25 May meeting between the Palestinian Prime Minister and the ICRC to expand field hospitals, facilitate medicine and supply entry, and support evacuations, alongside public calls from UN agencies—UNICEF, WHO, UNRWA and OCHA—for lifting administrative restrictions on crossings and ensuring entry of fuel, spare parts, water-system consumables and predictable flexible funding [1145][1139][1125][1119]. Urgent resource shortfalls repeatedly cited by partners include generators and spare parts, fuel, engine and lubricating oil, water treatment chemicals and reverse-osmosis spares, chlorine and testing kits [1139][1122].

Nutrition

Availability and Access to Nutrition Services

Widespread acute food insecurity affects roughly 1.6 million people in Gaza (about 77% of the population), including more than 100,000 children and some 37,000 pregnant and lactating women [1186][1190][1197]. Nutrition partners reported a 21% increase in malnutrition admissions between January–April 2026 compared with the same period in 2025, despite the ceasefire [1189]. Although famine conditions were reversed, UNICEF notes the number of malnourished and vulnerable children remains extremely serious, with children who recover at risk of rapid relapse without sufficient clean water and fuel, and there is not a single fully functioning hospital across Gaza [1192][1196].

Blockades, restrictions on so-called "dual-use" items, and limited crossings constrain the entry of food, therapeutic and medical supplies, and WASH spare parts, undermining the availability of therapeutic foods, micronutrient supplements, and infant formula needed for nutrition programmes [1185][1191][1193]. The collapse and damage to health services, widespread shortages of fuel and medical supplies, and limited functioning hospitals restrict facility-based malnutrition treatment and maternal and newborn nutrition support, increasing the risk that children who receive treatment will relapse into malnutrition [1220][1189][1192].

Severe water insecurity further undermines feeding and food preparation. UNICEF and partners aim to reach up to 1.5 million people with drinking water depending on access, yet most families remain water insecure (82%), up to 70% cannot collect the minimum 6 litres per person per day, and desalination output fell from ~20,000 m³/day in March to ~16,000 m³/day due to shortages of chemicals and spare parts, forcing costlier trucking and reducing capacity to support nutrition and infant feeding needs [1193][1192][1191].

The Al Mansoura filling point was rendered inaccessible after the killing of two contracted drivers in mid-April [1192].

Caregivers are adopting negative coping strategies — including mothers reducing their own rations — and maternal malnutrition, scarce infant formula, and shortages of therapeutic foods and supplements are undermining exclusive breastfeeding and infant and young child feeding practices, with reports of reduced breastmilk production and reliance on scarce formula and therapeutic products [1186][1185][1199][1206].

Nutrition Needs and Current Response

As part of May distributions, partners provided general food assistance to 122,000 households (440,000 people), with each family receiving two parcels — a 25-kg flour bag and 2.5 kg of high-energy biscuits — covering about 75% of minimum caloric needs [1194]. Humanitarian cooking operations have been sharply reduced: World Central Kitchen cut daily cooked meals from approximately 1 million to 200,000 (an 80% reduction), directly affecting roughly 250,000 displaced families dependent on hot meals, with the cuts attributed to a severe funding crisis and depleted operational resources [1186]. UNOPS delivered over 2.1 million litres of diesel into Gaza and distributed just over 2 million litres between 7–20 May to support humanitarian operations, yet fuel and access constraints persist [1194].

Agricultural production has been catastrophically reduced — FAO reports that less than 5% of Gaza's agricultural land remains usable, and greenhouses and livestock systems were largely destroyed — further undermining local food supply and nutrition recovery [1217][1202].

Funding shortfalls are acutely constraining the scale-up of nutrition and food assistance. The UN's 2026 flash appeal sought USD 4 billion for 3 million Palestinians in Gaza and the West Bank but had received only about 12% (~USD 490 million) by late May 2026 [1186].

WASH

Availability of Water Sources

As of late May 2026, UNICEF reports average drinking-water availability in Gaza is extremely low, around 4.5–6 litres per person per day, well below regional norms and household needs [1241][1240]. Most households remain water insecure (82%) and up to 70% are unable to collect the minimum 6 litres per person per day for drinking and cooking [1240]. UNICEF and partners are sustaining emergency WASH services by installing water tanks at displacement sites, trucking water from private desalination plants and domestic wells, and conducting well repairs and pipeline maintenance, reaching up to 1.5 million people with drinking-water distributions and supporting around 1 million people to access sufficient water for drinking and domestic needs [1241][1240]. Fifty-four partners provide roughly 24,000 m³/day to more than 2,000 locations, with approximately 74% of households relying on such deliveries [1240][1242][1281].

The Al Mansoura filling station has been inaccessible since the 17 April attack that killed two UNICEF-contracted drivers, forcing partners to truck roughly 2 million litres per day from alternative desalination plants at an additional cost of about USD 40,000 per day and disrupting daily access for an estimated 285,000 people who relied on it [1240][1267]. Seawater desalination output declined from approximately 20,000 m³/day in March to approximately 16,000 m³/day due to shortages of chemicals and spare parts [1240][1242]. Severe shortages of fuel, engine oil and spare parts are further disrupting water production and sewage pumping systems—the WASH Cluster estimates around 7,000 litres of engine oil are required monthly to sustain operations—and partners shut the Sheikh Radwan stormwater lagoon on 11 May to preserve generator lifespan, increasing flood and public-health risks [1242][1281][1251]. UNICEF's Gaza hotline logged over 85,000 calls reporting unmet hygiene needs and irregular or insufficient water supply, data which is being used to adapt WASH programming in accessible areas [1241].

Access to Sanitation Facilities and Hygiene Practices

Sanitation and hygiene in Gaza are under severe strain, with failing sewage systems, widespread rodent and insect infestations, and acute shortages of fuel, engine oil and spare parts disrupting WASH operations and increasing public-health risks [1240][1242]. UNICEF supported approximately 508,852 people to access sanitation services in overcrowded conditions, where privacy, cleanliness and safe waste disposal remain difficult and disease transmission risk is elevated [1241][1240]. UNICEF reached over 603,312 people with critical WASH supplies, and between 4–17 May distributed 15,343 hygiene kits, 2,448 dignity kits and 7,350 jerry cans benefiting almost 116,000 people [1241][1242][1281].

Menstrual hygiene needs are acute, with reports that nearly 700,000 women and girls in Gaza lack basic sanitary pads, undermining dignity and safe menstrual management in displacement settings [1269]. Critical maintenance and recovery actions are being implemented but remain constrained by access and supply restrictions, including emergency repairs to restore wastewater treatment and network functionality and household pilots for waste segregation that reduced waste volumes by about 15–20% in four shelters [1241]. Humanitarian actors call for predictable humanitarian access and the entry of fuel, lubricants, chemicals, spare parts, pumps and equipment, and access to landfills to sustain and scale WASH services and reduce public-health risks [1241][1240].

Waste Management and Vector-Borne Disease Risks

Solid waste is accumulating in and around displacement sites and shelters while managed disposal sites remain inaccessible, leaving temporary dump sites full or nearly full as of the 29 May 2026 WASH update [1240][1241][1252][1242]. Sanitary landfills near Gaza's perimeter remain largely inaccessible due to security constraints, and access to debris-removal and heavy equipment has not been approved, forcing continued reliance on overwhelmed temporary dump sites [1242][1281][1249]. This accumulation is driving severe environmental health risks: rodent and pest infestations are rising, more than half of households are experiencing skin diseases, and fleas, lice and scabies are commonplace as of late May 2026, while increasing clinical presentations include respiratory infections and acute watery diarrhoea [1240][1241][1267][1252].

To address pest and rodent infestations, WASH Cluster partners, local organizations and UNDP launched a response plan on 17 May targeting over 1,700 locations with spraying, rodent control and awareness activities; UNDP brought 3 tonnes of rodenticides and 3,000 litres of pesticides into Gaza, though partners stress that a full response requires access to landfills and approval to bring in debris-removal and heavy equipment [1242][1281][1251]. The Site Management Cluster reported approximately 1,600 displacement sites hosting about 1.7 million people (354,480 households) based on data collected between 3 February and 10 May, concentrating populations in makeshift settings where waste accumulation and pest exposure are greatest [1242][1281]. Kerem Shalom and Zikim remained the only operational entry points for humanitarian and commercial goods, with offloading rates at 81% between 11 and 17 May, constraining the timely entry of WASH consumables, spare parts and equipment needed to restore sustainable waste management and reduce vector-borne disease risk [1242][1281].

Main WASH Needs and Humanitarian Response

The main WASH needs in Gaza as of late May 2026 centre on restoring sustainable water supply, rehabilitating sanitation infrastructure, and scaling hygiene promotion amid severe funding and access constraints. UNICEF's 2026 Humanitarian Action for Children appeal requires USD 707.8 million, of which only 36% has been funded, leaving USD 451.8 million still needed across sectors [1241][1240][1251]. Administrative impediments to the entry of water treatment chemicals, spare parts and generator consumables—alongside attacks on water operations and restricted crossings—continue to undermine the humanitarian response [1241][1240].

On the operational side, emergency effectiveness has been maintained through fuel supplies, urgent repairs and temporary wastewater treatment restorations. However, scaling and sustainability remain constrained. Desalination output has declined due to chemical and spare-part shortages, and the estimated monthly shortfall of approximately 7,000 litres of engine oil threatens generator-dependent systems including water production, trucking and sewage pumping [1240][1242][1281]. The shutdown of the Sheikh Radwan stormwater lagoon on 11 May to preserve generator lifespan caused water and wastewater levels to rise significantly, increasing flood risk [1242][1251].

Humanitarian partners continue to deliver emergency services where access allows: water trucking, desalination support, well repairs and pipeline maintenance collectively reach millions of people, while hygiene kit distributions address acute NFI gaps [1242][1281][1241]. Actors stress the urgent need for predictable humanitarian access, the unimpeded entry of fuel, chemicals, spare parts and equipment, and access to sanitary landfills to sustain and expand life-saving WASH services across Gaza [1241][1240][1251].

Shelter and Non-Food Items (NFI)

Damage to Housing and Shelter Needs

Humanitarian partners report massive housing loss in Gaza, with roughly 1.7 million people sheltering in about 1,600 displacement sites—primarily overcrowded tents, schools, or damaged structures [1307][1365][1326]. Estimates indicate approximately 1.2 million homes have been lost, with up to 60 percent of the population having lost their homes completely, and large residential complexes such as Hamad City reduced to rubble [1321][1317]. Community infrastructure has been severely affected: schools and UN facilities are being used as shelters, hospitals and markets have been damaged or destroyed, and entire residential blocks and public housing projects have been razed, compounding the loss of habitual community spaces and complicating return or reconstruction [1314][1317][1308]. UNRWA and UNICEF reported that evacuation and shelter-in-place orders have affected shelters and at least two UNRWA installations, including a school-turned-shelter in Nuseirat, while overcrowding, poor sanitation, rodent infestations, and outbreaks of skin and diarrhoeal diseases are undermining shelter habitability [1314][1319][1316]. Between 16–17 May, partners recorded displacement of more than 150 families from eastern Khan Younis and eastern Gaza City, of whom 40 families were identified as requiring emergency assistance, and an 18 May airstrike reportedly damaged tents and tarpaulins belonging to 35 families in Jabalya Camp [1306][1313]. In the West Bank, rebuilding and durable shelter solutions are constrained by administrative restrictions and limits on entry of materials imposed by Israeli authorities, difficulties in obtaining Israeli-issued building permits linked to demolitions in Area C, and settlement expansion plans that threaten forcible displacement of communities such as Khan al-Ahmar [1307][1306][1334]. Priority shelter interventions identified by partners include immediate NFI and cash support and provision of safe, durable alternatives in hotspots such as eastern Khan Younis, eastern Gaza City, Jabalya Camp, and West Bank Area C communities facing demolitions [1306][1307].

Living Conditions in Camps or Settlements

Displacement sites across Gaza are severely overcrowded, offering limited privacy and dignity, particularly for women and girls. CARE and partner reporting indicates nearly 700,000 women and girls in Gaza lack basic sanitary pads, compounding protection and health risks in crowded settings [1344][1316]. Water insecurity is acute: UNICEF reports 82% of families remain water insecure and up to 70% cannot collect the minimum 6 litres per person per day for drinking and cooking [1319]. The Al Mansoura filling point has been inaccessible since the 17 April killing of two UNICEF-contracted drivers, forcing costlier trucking of water at approximately USD 40,000 per day to replace roughly 2 million litres per day previously sourced there, while seawater desalination output fell from 20,000 m³/day in March to 16,000 m³/day due to shortages of chemicals and spare parts [1319][1307]. Fuel and lubricant shortages are further disrupting water production and sewage pumping, contributing to shutdowns such as the Sheikh Radwan stormwater lagoon on 11 May [1319][1307]. Solid waste is accumulating at displacement sites as temporary dump sites reach or near capacity and sanitary landfills remain inaccessible, with humanitarian partners reporting increasing rodent and pest infestations entering shelters and contaminating food and living spaces [1319][1316][1314]. These deteriorating conditions have direct health and nutrition consequences, including rises in acute watery diarrhoea, respiratory and ectoparasitic infections such as scabies and rodent bites, and a 21% increase in malnutrition admissions between January–April 2026 compared to the same period in 2025 [1314].

Ongoing hostilities continue to worsen displacement conditions, with strikes in mid-May damaging tents and makeshift shelters—including an 18 May incident in Jabalya Camp—and airstrikes near humanitarian facilities also reported around Eid on 26 May [1306][1323].

NFI and Shelter Needs and Current Response

Between 11–17 May, partners provided 14,429 households with shelter and non-food assistance, including 14,936 bedding items, 3,173 bedding kits, 2,922 tarpaulins, 1,114 sealing-off kits, and 839 clothing kits; the Rapid Joint Distribution Mechanism supported 55 households with 10 tent packages and 45 sealing-off kits, and partners installed 115 emergency shelters in Gaza and Khan Younis [1306]. Between 1 January and 30 April, the Shelter Cluster reached over 9,300 households (more than 40,300 people) across the West Bank with shelter repairs, cash for rent, tents, plastic sheeting, bedding kits, kitchen sets, and clothing vouchers [1307][1306]. UNICEF reported reaching over 603,300 people with critical WASH and hygiene NFI supplies, with drinking-water distributions reaching up to 1.5 million people in late May, though core water systems remain under severe strain [1316][1319]. Despite these efforts, available stocks of essential household items were reported as sufficient for fewer than 3,400 additional households, and partners flagged administrative impediments imposed by Israeli authorities restricting entry of shelter items and limiting the scale-up of distributions [1306]. Humanitarian logistics and funding constraints are further limiting NFI delivery: only about half of aid trucks from Egypt offloaded in the first 18 days of May, Kerem Shalom/Karem Abu Salem remains the main cargo crossing, and engine oil and fuel shortages are disrupting WASH and shelter operations [1326][1311][1325]. Severe funding shortfalls compound these challenges, with the UN 2026 appeal approximately 12% funded at the time of reporting, forcing cuts that hamper both NFI and shelter responses [1325].

Protection

Impact on civilians

Between 12 and 18 May, Israeli forces and settlers killed five Palestinians (including one child) and injured nearly 60 across the West Bank [1382]. OCHA documented more than 50 settler attacks that week, noting an average of six such attacks per day in 2026 and over 870 such attacks across more than 220 communities since the start of the year [1382]. OCHA also documented more than 40 raids and other operations by Israeli forces across the West Bank during the reporting period, including prolonged raids in Tubas, Salfit, Jenin and Nablus and a 19-hour closure of Burin village on 17 May that disrupted movement, work and education [1396]. Approximately 100 students attempting to reach a Palestinian school in Hebron's H2 area faced repeated delays and restrictive checks at As Salaymeh (160) checkpoint on 11, 14 and 18 May, with 103 students unable to reach the school on 11 May [1396]. Demolitions and confiscation operations continued in late May, including home demolitions in Rantis on 19 May and further demolitions and seizures in Silwan and multiple firing zones on 25 May, displacing families and destroying livelihoods and infrastructure [1379]. Israeli moves to revive demolition orders and, on 1 June, to invite bids for 3,400 settlement units in the West Bank threaten imminent forced displacement for communities including Khan al-Ahmar, putting around 4,000 Palestinians across 18 communities at risk of losing homes and land [1433][1393].

In Gaza, renewed escalation in late May caused new displacement: more than 150 families fled eastern Khan Younis and eastern Gaza City on 16–17 May, of whom 40 families were identified as requiring emergency assistance after fleeing with only what they could carry [1382]. An airstrike on 18 May reportedly damaged tents and tarpaulins used by 35 families in Jabalya Camp, displacing dozens [1382]. UNRWA reported renewed military escalation and shelter-in-place orders affecting UNRWA installations and displacement sites between 20–25 May [1393]. Partners and WHO reported rising ectoparasitic infections, rodent bites, chickenpox and acute watery diarrhoea in Gaza, and WHO warned that dire conditions and blockages of medical supplies are worsening public-health risks [1393]. Only half of aid trucks from Egypt could offload at Kerem Shalom in the first 18 days of May, and partners launched a pest-control campaign in over 1,700 locations while warning that shortages and access restrictions limit the response [1382]. These raids, closures, evacuation and shelter-in-place orders are disrupting access to education, health care and livelihoods — forcing school closures and exam postponements, shutting shops, and interrupting work and services [1396]. Shelter actors reached over 9,300 households (more than 40,300 people) across the West Bank with shelter assistance between 1 January and 30 April, including repairs, tents, cash for rent and protective measures [1396].

Factors Driving protection risks

Escalating settler violence and Israeli forces' operations across the West Bank have driven acute protection risks in late May 2026, with more than 50 settler attacks documented in one week and an average of six attacks per day in 2026 [1382]. Concerns over forced displacement intensified after Israeli authorities moved to implement long-standing demolition orders in Area C and East Jerusalem, notably affecting Khan al-Ahmar; OCHA records approximately 550 structures demolished in 18 Bedouin and herding communities since 2009 — including 175 donor-funded structures — heightening the risk of community-level forcible displacement [1396].

In Gaza, recurrent strikes, shelling and military operations have kept large numbers displaced in overcrowded tents and damaged shelters, while humanitarian access is constrained by logistics and crossing restrictions [1382]. UNRWA and WHO reported worsening public-health and protection threats in late May, including rising ectoparasitic infections and rodent infestations, linked to blockages of medical supplies and constrained services [1393]. A recent UN report documenting conflict-related sexual violence and the March 2026 dropping of charges in emblematic abuse cases point to systemic accountability gaps in detention and interrogation settings, increasing risks of torture, sexual violence and impunity for detainees [1398]. Movement restrictions and checkpoint procedures — including repeated delays and denial of access for students in Hebron in May and requirements for humanitarian teams to coordinate movements with Israeli authorities — impede access to education, services and assistance [1396][1382]. Explosive remnants and explosive-ordnance risks remain a protection hazard for children and communities, prompting regular explosive-ordnance risk education and psychosocial responses by protection partners [1382][1396].

Psychological and mental health impacts

Between 11 and 17 May, humanitarian partners delivered mental health and psychosocial support (MHPSS) – including psychological first aid and individual and group counselling – reaching 8,259 people according to Protection Cluster reporting, contributing to a broader protection response that reached more than 10,000 people in the same period [1382][1410]. Child protection partners provided MHPSS on a weekly average to about 1,600 children (including roughly 80 children with disabilities) and more than 670 caregivers, alongside awareness sessions and case management for a smaller number of children [1382][1396]. Services included recreational activities, art and drama sessions, counselling and parenting support delivered in shelters, camps, schools and displacement sites [1410][1382].

Repeated displacement, overcrowding in shelters, loss of homes and exposure to ongoing strikes are generating high levels of chronic stress, anxiety and trauma – particularly among children who face disrupted schooling, disrupted routines and repeated exposure to violence [1376][1402][1384][1435]. Partners stressed that fuel, safe spaces, trained staff and basic resources are required to sustain these interventions. Protection partners also provided limited staff-care activities, with 25 responders receiving staff care during the referenced week, noting psychological distress among front-line staff alongside constraints caused by access restrictions and resource shortages [1382].

Protection Needs and Current Response

Between 11–17 May, protection partners delivered lifesaving and protection-related services to almost 11,000 people, including legal aid to 219 people, referrals and case follow-up to 232 people, support to 341 persons with disabilities, group psychosocial sessions to 350 people, mine-action and explosive ordnance risk education to 168 people, relief distributed to 1,265 people, and staff care for 25 responders [1382]. During the same period, partners assisted 146 returnees from Egypt, and since the reopening of the Rafah border and as of 14 May, 2,429 returnees had been assisted, including 885 currently receiving follow-up protection services [1382]. Protection monitoring continued through eight focus group discussions and 130 key-informant interviews across 16 neighbourhoods, reaching 1,155 people [1382].

Shelter-related protective measures included the installation of 115 emergency shelters in Gaza and Khan Younis and provision of shelter and non-food assistance to 14,429 households, while available stocks remain sufficient for fewer than 3,400 additional households and administrative impediments continue to restrict shelter items [1382][1396]. OCHA reported an airstrike near five humanitarian facilities in Deir al-Balah and reiterated calls for opening more crossings and for fuel, safe spaces, staff and other basic resources to sustain protection and child-focused services [1410][1382].

The Palestinian Prisoners' Club warned of scabies outbreaks and alleged denial of care in Israeli prisons, and UN officials verified 31 cases of sexual abuse in Israeli prisons in 2025, prompting calls for immediate access by lawyers, medical personnel and the ICRC and for accountability measures [1402][1424][1434][1411]. Medical Aid for Palestinians reported cumulative Gaza deaths exceeding 72,700 since October 2023, including more than 1,700 healthcare workers and 594 aid workers, which undermines protection of civilians and humanitarian access [1446]. Humanitarian actors reported key operational gaps constraining protection work, including acute psychological distress among staff, persistent fuel shortages, rising transportation costs, cash-flow constraints, and limited availability of essential materials and spare parts [1382].

Child Protection concerns

Between 11 and 17 May, child protection partners provided individual case management to 56 newly identified high-risk children, continued follow-up for more than 3,000 active child protection cases, carried out 135 follow-up contacts for unaccompanied and separated children to assess wellbeing and care arrangements, and delivered child-protection awareness and community-based protection activities reaching about 4,700 children and caregivers [1382][1396]. On a weekly average, child protection partners reach approximately 380 children and 100 caregivers through awareness and explosive-ordnance risk education, and provided cash or in-kind assistance to about 60 children and 12 caregivers, while 35 children received case management support [1396]. Partners report that child-friendly spaces, high-risk case management and MHPSS services face disruptions and urgently require additional funding, fuel, transport, operational supplies, trained case workers and accessible safe spaces [1382][1396].

The Palestinian Centre for Missing and Enforcedly Hidden Persons reported an estimated 2,900 missing or forcibly hidden children in Gaza – approximately 2,700 believed to be under rubble – and called for urgent international action on 25 May to determine their fate [1411]. The UN verified multiple incidents of conflict-related sexual violence affecting children in the occupied Palestinian territory, including cases involving nine boys and one girl from Gaza and the West Bank, with many incidents occurring during detention and interrogation [1404][1398].

Humanitarian and court data indicate a rise in early marriage as a negative coping mechanism. Supreme Shariah Court figures for 2024–2025 show that 20.6% of 35,474 recorded marriages involved girls under 18, including 627 marriages of girls under 15, reversing earlier declines noted in 2022 [1387][1399].

Violence against women and girls

The United Nations verified 31 cases of conflict-related sexual violence affecting Palestinians from Gaza and the West Bank, involving 14 men, seven women, nine boys and one girl, with 13 cases recorded in 2025 and 18 dating to 2023–2024 [1398][1434][1395]. Documented violations included rape (including with objects), gang rape, attempted rape, targeted physical violence to genitals (including shootings), forced nudity, degrading strip and cavity searches, unwanted touching, threats of rape, and in some instances filmed or photographed abuse [1398][1395][1450]. The UN attributed responsibility to members of the Israeli military, the Israel Prison Service (including the Keter unit) and police counter-terrorism units (Yamam), noting that most abuses occurred during detention and interrogation across multiple sites including Sde Teiman, Etzion and several prisons and police stations [1398][1395][1386].

The report highlighted persistent barriers to reporting and investigation — including denial of UN and ICRC access to detention facilities, threats against detainees that deter reporting, and a systemic lack of accountability — and noted that charges in the emblematic Sde Teiman case were dropped in March 2026, a development the UN warned could entrench impunity [1386][1390][1395].

OCHA and protection partners warned that settler and military-related violence is compounding GBV risks and driving displacement across the West Bank, documenting over 870 settler attacks in 2026 up to mid-May that heighten protection needs for women and girls [1382][1396]. Local women's organisations continue legal-awareness and protection programming in the West Bank, for example a SPEED project session in Ein Arik on 12 May 2026 to strengthen legal knowledge and link psychosocial support with access to justice [1467].

Vulnerable Groups / Special Needs Groups

Unaccompanied and Separated Children

Between 11 and 17 May, partners provided mental health and psychosocial support (MHPSS) to over 4,000 children and about 1,500 caregivers, and carried out child protection awareness and community-based activities reaching approximately 4,700 children and caregivers across shelters, camps, schools and displacement sites [1484][1483]. Partners provided individual case management to 56 newly identified high-risk children, continued follow-up for more than 3,000 active child-protection cases involving children without parental care, and conducted 135 follow-up contacts specifically for unaccompanied and separated children to assess wellbeing, care arrangements and protection concerns [1484][1483]. Partners state that sustaining high-risk case management and MHPSS services is contingent on additional funding, fuel, transport and operational supplies, as well as more trained caseworkers, MHPSS specialists, accessible safe spaces and psychosocial materials [1484][1483]. The Palestinian Centre for Missing and Enforcedly Hidden Persons reported some 2,900 children in Gaza as missing or forcibly hidden, including an estimate that around 2,700 remain under rubble or unaccounted for, and called for urgent action to determine their fate (campaign issued around 25 May) [1501].

Pregnant and Lactating Women

A January 2026 report by Physicians for Human Rights and the Global Human Rights Clinic at the University of Chicago concluded that attacks on reproductive health facilities, severe restrictions on medical and food supplies, and widespread malnutrition in 2025 contributed to increased miscarriages, maternal and neonatal deaths, infertility, and long-term reproductive harms while severely undermining access to basic maternal and neonatal care [1486]. The World Food Programme estimated that 1.6 million people in Gaza face high levels of acute food insecurity, including approximately 37,000 pregnant and lactating women, increasing risks of maternal malnutrition and reduced breastmilk production [1496]. Field reporting and UNICEF further noted that maternal malnutrition and lack of access to prenatal care have reduced breastfeeding capacity and that formula and routine pregnancy check-ups are often unavailable [1502][1500]. UNRWA reported a 21% increase in malnutrition admissions between January–April 2026 compared with the same period in 2025, signaling rising nutritional risks for mothers and newborns [1485]. UNICEF warned on 29 May that severe water insecurity, fuel shortages and restrictions on spare parts and chemicals have reduced desalination and trucking capacity, limiting families' access to water needed for cooking, hygiene and infant care [1492]. Between 4–17 May, UNICEF distributed 15,343 hygiene kits, 2,448 dignity kits and 7,350 jerry cans, benefiting almost 116,000 people [1484]. Partners supported medical evacuations of 59 patients (including six children) to Egypt via Rafah between 11–17 May, and on 25 May the Prime Minister met ICRC representatives to discuss scaling field hospitals, facilitating entry of medicines and expanding evacuations for wounded Palestinians, indicating constrained but ongoing efforts to restore maternal health services [1484][1541]. The Palestinian Ministry of Women's Affairs and UN bodies warned that occupation-related violence, displacement and the collapse of services have increased risks of gender-based violence and limited survivors' access to protection and specialized services [1516].

Adolescents and Youth

Students faced access restrictions to education in the West Bank: about 100 students attempting to reach a Palestinian school in Hebron's H2 area were repeatedly delayed at the As Salaymeh checkpoint, and on 11 May 103 students were unable to reach the school, with similar disruptions reported on 14 and 18 May [1483]. UNRWA opened a Temporary Learning Space at a displacement site south of Khan Younis on 20 May and registered 1,600 children within a week [1485]. Community-based psychosocial support remains the primary youth intervention, complemented by recreational and structured activities and parenting sessions [1483][1484]. Between 11–17 May, protection partners provided MHPSS to 8,259 people, while child protection actors provided MHPSS to over 4,000 children and reached about 1,500 caregivers [1483][1484]. Graduates and young jobseekers in the West Bank face a collapsed job market, with public-sector wage disruptions and rising unemployment prompting many to seek low-paid work or leave, according to Al Jazeera reporting [1508].

People with Disabilities

Child protection partners provide MHPSS to approximately 1,600 children weekly, including about 80 children with disabilities, and to more than 670 caregivers [1483][1484]. Between 11 and 17 May, 11 protection partners delivered MHPSS to 8,259 people, provided legal aid to 219 people, referrals and case follow-up to 232 people, and provided other support to 341 persons with disabilities, while 35 children received case management support including specialized referrals [1483][1484].

Elderly

Access to healthcare, essential medicines and regular treatment for chronic conditions is critically disrupted in Gaza, with the Gaza Ministry of Health warning that 250 dialysis patients risk losing access and 11,000 diabetic patients face insulin shortages amid a collapsing health system and blockages of medical supplies reported by UN agencies and WHO [1509][1488][1485]. Repeated displacement, evacuation orders and movement restrictions have sharply limited older people's ability to reach care and services, particularly in areas subject to evacuation or siege-like conditions and in isolated West Bank communities cut off by checkpoints and settlement expansion [1486][1484][1559]. Overcrowded, unsanitary shelters and inadequate WASH and waste management—reported across displacement sites—are increasing health risks for older people and those with limited mobility, while available shelter sites generally lack age-friendly adaptations and privacy measures [1484][1498][1492]. Recurrent displacement and the destruction of homes have eroded social networks and community supports that older people rely on for care and intergenerational assistance, undermining their social protection and dignity [1496][1491]. Older Palestinians detained in Israeli custody have been reported as facing denial of healthcare, malnutrition and other abusive treatment, a protection concern raised by Palestinian officials and UN investigations into detention abuses [1541][1531]. Humanitarian partners are providing targeted support that can benefit older people—such as mental health and psychosocial services, assistance to persons with disabilities, mobile clinics and shelter repairs—but coverage gaps and constrained access mean many older people remain unreached [1483][1484][1559]. Sustaining services for older people depends on urgent unimpeded delivery of fuel, medical supplies, spare parts and safe humanitarian access, needs repeatedly highlighted by UNICEF and OCHA as critical to keep health, water and social services functioning [1492][1484].

Displaced

UN and rights bodies warned in late May that nearly the entire Gaza population remains displaced and concentrated into an increasingly narrow area following multiple displacement orders, and that recent announcements to expand Israeli forces' control of Gaza territory raise grave concerns about civilians' ability to find safety and access humanitarian assistance [1494][1509][1521]. Between 16 and 17 May, humanitarian partners recorded the displacement of more than 150 families from eastern Khan Younis and eastern Gaza City, of which 40 families were identified as requiring emergency assistance [1484]. Many displaced families are sheltering in overcrowded tents, schools or damaged structures with few safe alternatives amid recurrent strikes and access constraints disrupting humanitarian activities [1484][1483]. Shelter Cluster partners reached over 9,300 households (more than 40,300 people) across the West Bank with shelter assistance between 1 January and 30 April 2026, and partners installed 115 emergency shelters in Gaza and Khan Younis, but available stocks were reported as sufficient for fewer than 3,400 additional households [1484][1483]. UNICEF reported in late May 2026 that emergency WASH services are being sustained through trucking, desalination and tank installations, supporting around 1 million people with sufficient drinking water at scale and reaching up to 1.5 million people with drinking-water distributions, while noting that 82% of families remain water insecure and up to 70% cannot collect the minimum six litres per person per day [1498][1492]. UNICEF also reported delivering water tanks to shelters, providing critical hygiene items to over 603,300 people and supporting nearly 509,000 people with sanitation services, while warning of mounting rodent and pest infestations and inaccessible landfills that increase public-health risks [1498][1492]. UNRWA and WHO reported rising infectious-disease and nutrition concerns in May 2026, with UNRWA noting increased ectoparasitic infections and WHO warning that blockages of essential medical supplies are worsening outbreaks and service collapse [1485]. Protection partners provided lifesaving protection and MHPSS to almost 11,000 people between 11–17 May and assisted 2,429 returnees via Rafah as of 14 May, with 885 currently receiving follow-up protection services [1484]. In the West Bank, demolition orders and settlement expansion are heightening displacement risks: Khan al-Ahmar and 17 other Bedouin/herding communities (around 4,000 people) face imminent forced displacement, and OCHA has documented roughly 550 structure demolitions in those communities since 2009, including 175 donor-funded structures [1484][1559][1483]. Escalating settler violence and demolitions have caused repeated local displacements and obstructed access to livelihoods and services, with reports documenting more than 50 settler attacks in a single week and a 2026 total of some 870 incidents across over 220 communities [1509].

Minorities

On 16 May, 22 Palestinian Bedouin families (137 people) were forcibly displaced from the Jiljiliya area following a large settler attack; those families had previously been displaced from other communities in 2023 [1483]. Israeli authorities moved to revive demolition orders against Khan al-Ahmar and scheduled a 1 June tender for 3,400 settlement units in the EI area, putting Khan al-Ahmar among 18 Bedouin and herding communities — around 4,000 people — at heightened risk of forced displacement [1559][1546]. Escalating settler violence across the West Bank — more than 50 attacks in one week and an average of six attacks per day in 2026 — has resulted in casualties, property damage and increased protection risks for Palestinian communities [1484]. The UN Secretary-General's annual report placed Israeli occupation forces on the list of parties credibly suspected of patterns of conflict-related sexual violence; UN investigators verified multiple cases affecting men, women and children, noting many abuses occurred during detention and interrogation and highlighting a systemic lack of accountability [1531][1538]. Local women's organisations have begun legal awareness and access-to-justice sessions — including a Palestinian Women's Development Association session on 12 May 2026 as part of a 72-session series — to strengthen legal protection for women [1483][1565]. Humanitarian partners warn that access constraints and restricted aid deliveries limit the effectiveness of protection and inclusion efforts for minority and marginalised groups across the Occupied Palestinian Territory [1484][1483].

West Bank

Ramallah & Al-Bireh

During the week of 12–18 May 2026, Ramallah & Al-Bireh governorate experienced a severe escalation of settler violence and military operations, with multiple communities directly affected. According to OCHA's 25 May 2026 Humanitarian Situation Report, a large-scale attack on 13 May across Sinjil, Jiljiliya, and Abwein villages in Ramallah governorate resulted in Israeli forces and settlers shooting and killing one Palestinian and injuring 10 others. Dozens of Israeli settlers raided the western area of Sinjil and nearby areas, stealing Palestinian-owned livestock and other property. When residents attempted to retrieve stolen flocks, Israeli forces and settlers fired live ammunition, rubber bullets, and tear gas canisters [1589][1590]. The consequences were severe: on 16 May, 22 Palestinian Bedouin families comprising 137 people, including 81 children, were forcibly displaced from the area following recurrent settler attacks and intimidation. These families had previously been displaced from three other communities in 2023 due to settler violence, highlighting their acute and compounding vulnerability [1589][1590].

Arson attacks also escalated significantly across Ramallah governorate during the reporting period. Israeli settlers set fire to a mosque in Jibiya village in Ramallah governorate, also torching a Palestinian-owned car and spray-painting Hebrew graffiti on the mosque walls [1590][1589]. In Al Mughayyir and Burqa villages in Ramallah governorate, settlers set fire to agricultural land, burning olive trees and cultivated areas, with one fire spreading across approximately 10 dunums due to strong winds [1590][1589]. The village of Al-Mughayyir, northeast of Ramallah, also saw additional raids and arrests by Israeli forces in the following days: on 21 May, Israeli forces set fire to farmland west of the village using tear gas canisters and fired on locals who tried to extinguish the flames [1592]. In an early morning raid on 22 May, approximately 20 soldiers beat an activist, punching him in the face and whipping him with a belt, while ransacking four homes and arresting children in Al-Mughayyir [1592].

Settlers from a recently established outpost near Ein 'Arik village in Ramallah governorate reportedly raided homes, physically assaulted four Palestinians, vandalized water tanks and construction materials, and seized electric cables [1590][1589]. In a separate incident, settlers attacked Palestinian families in the Khalifa area of the village of Tayya'a, east of Ramallah, deliberately bringing sheep and camels near homes, causing destruction of property and trees, and surrounding Palestinian residences during the attack [1583].

Two homes in Rantis, west of Ramallah, were demolished without warning by Israeli forces on 19 May, displacing families with no time to collect their belongings — one home housed a woman and her son, and the other a family of nine including seven children [1592]. Additionally, Israeli forces demolished a cement factory in Kharbatha Bani Harith and a house in Shuqba, both in Ramallah governorate [1592].

On 12 May, Israeli forces opened fire toward two Palestinians attempting to scale the Barrier near Dahiyat al Bareed in Jerusalem governorate, killing a Palestinian man originally from Deir Qaddis village in Ramallah governorate and injuring another, as they reportedly attempted to cross to access work in Israel [1590][1589].

Israeli forces also carried out a raid in Deir Jarir village in Ramallah governorate on 27 May, resulting in the detention of a villager [1601].

On the protection front, the Palestinian Women's Working Development Association organized a legal awareness-raising meeting for 15 women in Ein Arik village, west of Ramallah, on 12 May 2026, within the SPEED project aimed at strengthening protection, psychosocial support, and emergency response services for women and girls. The session covered legal rights including personal status, inheritance, custody, and procedures for recovering official documents lost due to displacement or demolition [1617].

In August 2025, Israel announced the inclusion of three Palestinian archaeological sites in Ramallah governorate on its list of "Israeli archaeological sites," as part of a broader West Bank-wide reclassification effort [1595]. Separately, the village of Al-Nabi Samuel, situated between Ramallah and Jerusalem, was affected by an Israeli Civil Administration order confiscating approximately 28 acres of land around the Prophet Samuel site, including areas of the historic mosque and surrounding towns, under the declared pretext of a development project for archaeological preservation [1579].

The national and Islamic forces of Ramallah and Al-Bireh governorate publicly called for the expansion of popular activities in support of prisoners and human rights institutions, emphasizing resistance to occupation plans including settler outpost expansion and the displacement of Palestinian communities [1582].

Hebron

In the Hebron governorate, the reporting period of 12–18 May 2026 saw a significant escalation of settler violence, security incidents, and access restrictions with direct humanitarian implications for Palestinian communities.

On 17 May, Israeli forces shot a Palestinian man near the Barrier in Beit Ula village, in Hebron governorate, while he was reportedly attempting to cross. He succumbed to his wounds the following day, according to OCHA [1590][1589].

Settler violence was particularly pronounced across the governorate during this period. In Wadi ar Rakhim community near Susiya, in southern Hebron governorate, Israeli settlers threw flammable materials toward a Palestinian home, setting fire to an external kitchen, damaging a parked vehicle, and causing damage to parts of the house [1590][1589]. In a separate incident on 17 May in Umm ad Daraj community near Sa'ir village, a large group of settlers reportedly physically assaulted four Palestinians and damaged residential structures and personal property [1590][1589]. Additionally, settlers attacked Palestinian farmland and damaged several trees in Khirbet el-Muraq in Masafer Yatta, south of Hebron [1610]. According to UN reports, escalating settler violence in southern Hebron and the Jordan Valley has reportedly led to the total displacement of a number of communities since the outbreak of the war, with settlers taking control of their territories [1579].

In 2025, around 17 Israeli settlers attacked and destroyed a clinic in Hebron governorate, according to the Safeguarding Health in Conflict Coalition (SHCC), representing a severe attack on health infrastructure [1607].

Access to education in Hebron city is also severely disrupted. About 100 students attempting to reach a Palestinian school in the H2 area of Hebron city through As Salaymeh (160) checkpoint were repeatedly subjected to delays and restrictive measures by Israeli forces, including demands to present birth certificates and, in some cases, be accompanied by a parent. On 11 May, 103 students were unable to reach the school altogether, and similar restrictions were again reported on 14 and 18 May [1590][1589].

Movement restrictions in Hebron governorate are particularly severe. The governorate is experiencing frequent closures of major and sub-barriers, as well as tighter procedures at the entrances to Bethlehem townships and around the Gush Etzion settlement complex, exacerbating the suffering of the population and resulting in partial paralysis of movement [1586]. An operation near the Gush Etzion junction resulted in the killing of a 30-year-old resident of Hebron city by Israeli forces [1586].

During Eid al-Adha, Israeli forces closed the gates of the Ibrahimi Mosque in the occupied city of Hebron and fired sound bombs at worshippers, with attendance estimated at only 300 people – no more than 30% of the usual number, according to the Governor of Hebron. The mosque, located in the Old City of Hebron where approximately 400 settlers are housed and guarded by roughly 1,500 Israeli soldiers, has faced increasing access restrictions in recent years [1584]. The Ibrahimi Mosque is also among sites at risk under a proposed Israeli heritage authority bill, which Palestinian and human rights organizations fear could be used to redefine sovereignty and historical identity [1595].

The Palestinian Ministry of Women's Affairs, represented by Hebron officials, highlighted that Israeli aggression, forced displacement, and destruction of infrastructure have increased risks faced by women and girls and created conditions of heightened vulnerability to gender-based violence, including sexual violence, exploitation, and economic exclusion [1596].

Jenin

During the reporting period of 25 May to 1 June 2026, Jenin governorate continued to face severe humanitarian conditions driven by ongoing Israeli military operations, movement restrictions, and violence affecting civilians, health care, and essential services.

On 16 May, Israeli forces shot and killed a Palestinian man at the entrance to Jenin Camp, reportedly while he was attempting to enter, according to OCHA. Jenin Camp has remained a closed military zone since January 2025. On 26 May, Israeli forces fatally shot another Palestinian man in Jenin refugee camp during a raid, after he sustained wounds to the lower half of his body. On 27 May, Israeli occupation forces raided Qabatiya town in Jenin governorate, deploying infantry units, breaking into several homes, and detaining three residents. On the same day, Israeli soldiers denied Palestinian families access to ash-Shuhada Cemetery on the outskirts of Jenin refugee camp, firing barrages of tear gas canisters at Palestinians attempting to visit graves of their relatives.

During the broader reporting period, OCHA documented prolonged raids in Jenin, among other governorates including Tubas, Salfit, and Nablus, involving large-scale house searches, temporary takeover of Palestinian homes for military use, detentions, and reported physical assaults.

The humanitarian situation in Jenin has been deeply affected since January 2025, when the IDF carried out a major security operation in Jenin refugee camp, causing extensive damage to public and private infrastructure and large-scale displacement of residents. Following this operation, several health clinics in Jenin camp were forced to temporarily suspend services or faced significant operational challenges, further constraining access to health care. In January 2025, the IDF also took over Jenin Hospital in Jenin refugee camp and turned it into a military barracks, arresting nurses who were treating injured people. Explosive weapons, including drone-fired missiles and controlled demolitions, damaged a hospital in Jenin. Palestinian Authority security forces also violently raided al-Razi Hospital in Jenin city and arrested a wounded patient on accusations related to Jenin Brigade membership.

Humanitarian access in northern West Bank, where Jenin is located, has been particularly severely constrained, with military operations damaging infrastructure and disrupting health care and other critical services throughout 2025 and into 2026. According to WHO, 25% of scheduled appointments across the West Bank were missed because of movement restrictions, a trend that is especially acute in conflict-affected northern areas such as Jenin where hospitals and health centers were forced to close or suspend operations.

Nablus

In the reporting period covering late May 2026, Nablus governorate experienced significant escalation in Israeli military operations, settler violence, and protection incidents with direct humanitarian implications.

On 14 May, Israeli forces shot and killed a Palestinian child in Al Lubban ash Sharqiya village in Nablus governorate and withheld his body. According to OCHA, the Israeli military stated that soldiers opened fire near Road 60 after stones were thrown at Israeli vehicles [1590][1589].

Israeli forces carried out prolonged raids in Nablus governorate involving large-scale house searches, temporary takeover of Palestinian homes for military use, detentions, and reported physical assaults [1589][1590]. On 17 May, Israeli forces closed all entrances to Burin village – a community of approximately 3,000 Palestinians southwest of Nablus city – for nearly 19 hours, reportedly after alleging stones had been thrown at Israeli vehicles. The closure disrupted movement and access to work and education, forcing shops to close and leading some schools to postpone exams and suspend classes [1589][1590]. On 24 May, Israeli soldiers detained more than a dozen residents in Burin; all but one were later released, reportedly after being beaten by Israeli forces [1592].

Settler violence in Burin village was also documented during the same period. At least two attacks on homes in Burin included attempted break-ins, property damage, and physical assaults against residents. In one incident on 13 May, a 13-year-old Palestinian girl was struck on the head with a stick by an Israeli settler during an attack on her family's home while her family attempted to protect their livestock. She was treated at the scene by Palestine Red Crescent Society paramedics [1589][1590].

Israeli settlers also carried out multiple assaults on Palestinian homes and infrastructure across Nablus governorate, including physical assaults against Palestinians, attacks on homes while families including children were inside, damage to water and electricity infrastructure, theft and vandalism of agricultural property, and destruction of olive trees and fencing [1589][1590]. Separately, settlers attacked homes in Beita, south of Nablus city, throwing stones and smashing vehicles [1610].

On 27 May, Israeli forces raided Tell and Beit Iba towns in Nablus governorate, ransacking several homes and detaining four occupants [1601]. On 28 May, Israeli forces raided towns south and west of Nablus and arrested four Palestinians after storming and searching several homes [1604]. On 29 May, Israeli forces detained a man and a woman during a dawn raid on Al-Ein refugee camp west of Nablus, raiding and searching several homes, vandalizing property, and detaining two Palestinians [1577]. That same night, Israeli forces stormed the Askar al-Jadid refugee camp east of Nablus amid live fire and tear gas, though no injuries were reported [1581].

Israeli forces also raided the Zawata area west of Nablus, physically assaulting a young man causing bruises; paramedics also treated two women experiencing chest pain after Israeli forces surrounded and stormed a residential building in the same area and fully evacuated it. Additionally, Israeli forces stormed Awarta village south of Nablus with multiple military vehicles, firing tear gas, sound grenades, and live ammunition, leading to clashes with residents [1623][1631].

On the issue of cultural heritage, in August 2025, Israel announced the classification of 59 archaeological sites in Nablus governorate as "Israeli archaeological sites," part of a broader listing of 63 additional Palestinian sites across the West Bank. Palestinian observers also warned that Israeli policies being applied to other West Bank sites could extend to the Tomb of Yusuf in Nablus, currently under Palestinian administration [1579][1595]. A political analyst noted that settlement expansion pressure is currently concentrated in the northern West Bank between Nablus, Jenin, and Tulkarm, through the revival and reconstruction of previously dismantled settlements in a broader and expanded form [1629].

A Palestinian worker from Salem village near Nablus was killed after being shot in the thigh by Israeli forces while attempting to scale the separation wall near al-Ram, north of Jerusalem, in search of work [1621].

Tulkarm

As of 31 May 2026, Tulkarm Governor Abdullah Kamil announced that Israeli occupation forces had extended their assault on Tulkarm and Nur Shams refugee camps until 31 July 2026, describing the decision as a further escalation of violations against civilians and a deepening of the humanitarian crisis for thousands of forcibly displaced families. The governor stated that systematic demolition of homes and commercial facilities, destruction of infrastructure, and ongoing bulldozing and vandalism inside the camps reflect a deliberate policy targeting Palestinian communities, exacerbating already severe humanitarian and economic conditions [1602].

Kamil further highlighted that the continued closures imposed on the camps and their surrounding areas deprive residents of basic rights and deepen the hardship of displaced families. He emphasized that the impacts extend beyond the camps themselves, affecting citizens' freedom of movement and economic activity across the entire Tulkarm governorate, amid extensive damage to homes, property, and infrastructure [1602]. He renewed urgent calls on international organizations, humanitarian bodies, and human rights institutions to intervene to halt the assault and address the ongoing violations against Palestinians in Tulkarm and Nur Shams camps [1602].

The humanitarian situation in Tulkarm is set against the backdrop of a major Israeli military operation launched in January 2025 in Tulkarm and Nur Shams refugee camps — coinciding with the Gaza ceasefire — which caused extensive damage to public and private infrastructure and resulted in large-scale displacement of residents [1607]. The camps have remained under severe access restrictions, with Jenin Camp similarly maintained as a closed military zone since January 2025, indicating a regional pattern affecting northern West Bank camps including those in Tulkarm [1607].

The Palestinian Women's Development Association has been conducting legal awareness-raising sessions for women across Tulkarm governorate, as part of a broader program also covering Nablus, Jenin, and Ramallah governorates. The program consists of 72 sessions, each involving 15 women, aimed at enhancing access to legal protection and services and building capacity to cope with violence and discrimination [1617]. Separately, a source noted that settlement weight in the northern West Bank is currently concentrated between Nablus, Jenin, and Tulkarm, through the revival and expansion of settlements, intensifying pressure on Palestinian communities in the governorate [1629].

Qalqilya

On 29 May 2026, Israeli forces stormed Qalqilya city through its eastern entrance and raided the Nazzal, al-Naqqar, and Juaidi neighborhoods. According to WAFA, troops detained four Palestinians after searching their homes and ransacking their contents. During the raid, Israeli forces deployed snipers across the city and posted threatening leaflets before withdrawing after a two-hour incursion [1577].

Bethlehem

In Bethlehem governorate, Israeli military operations and movement restrictions continued to impose severe humanitarian pressure during the period of late May 2026. Israeli forces raided the town of al-Khader, south of Bethlehem, where forces deployed across several neighborhoods, searched homes, and detained a number of residents before later releasing them [1604]. Tighter procedures at the entrances to Bethlehem townships and around the Etzion settlement complex have been documented, exacerbating the movement of the population and resulting in partial paralysis of daily life [1586].

A security incident was recorded at the Gush Etzion junction, south of Bethlehem, where Israeli forces killed a Palestinian man following a reported vehicle ramming attack in which four Israelis were injured, two seriously.

The body of the man was subsequently detained by the Israeli occupation authorities [1586].

Regarding settlement expansion, a parallel project referred to as E2, south of Bethlehem, would involve around 2,500 new settlement units built in a corridor designed to sever the southern West Bank in half, compounding the fragmentation already driven by the E1 project east of Jerusalem [1598]. The Israeli NGO Regavim, which was sanctioned by the European Union, had campaigned for the demolition of an EU-funded Palestinian primary school in the village of Jabbet al-Dhib, near Bethlehem, illustrating the direct threat to education infrastructure within the governorate [1622][1625].

On the economic front, Bethlehem University was reported as a site of visible economic distress among young graduates. Nearly 40 percent of young Palestinians in the occupied West Bank holding at least a diploma are unemployed, with overall unemployment having more than doubled since October 2023, peaking at 35.2 percent in early 2024 and standing at 27.5 percent by end of 2025. The former mayor of Bethlehem noted that the city is witnessing doctors working in restaurants, nurses struggling to find work, and a broader exodus of Palestinian talent [1599]. The Palestinian Authority's inability to pay full salaries, driven by Israel's withholding of tax revenues, has further eroded the public sector as a viable employment pathway [1599].

In a notable community resilience initiative, Aida refugee camp in Bethlehem hosted the fourth edition of its Bazar Return event on the occasion of Eid al-Adha, after a two-year absence caused by the destruction of the Aida Youth Centre. Thousands of visitors attended from across Bethlehem district, with participation from dozens of handicraft vendors and cultural performers. Bethlehem Mayor Hanna Hanania attended and praised the event as a reflection of community cohesion and attachment to the right of return. The head of the camp's popular services committee noted that the event coincides with the 78th anniversary of the Nakba and that such initiatives strengthen solidarity and provide families and children with a space for hope despite difficult conditions [1588][1574].

The Church of the Nativity in Bethlehem was identified among the most significant Palestinian archaeological and religious sites potentially affected by Israeli draft legislation seeking to establish a heritage authority over West Bank sites, which Palestinian and international observers warn could be used to redefine the historical and cultural identity of these locations [1595].

Jericho

The most directly relevant information for Jericho governorate in the reporting period concerns the Jordan Valley area and the Khan al-Ahmar Bedouin community, which lies in the E1 corridor east of Jerusalem — a zone that falls within or immediately adjacent to the Jericho governorate's Area C territory, and is closely linked to the broader Jordan Valley and Dead Sea region referenced in available sources.

According to OCHA's Humanitarian Situation Report dated 25 May 2026, the Israeli Finance Minister instructed Israeli authorities to rapidly implement long-standing demolition orders against Khan al-Ahmar, a Bedouin community located east of Jerusalem in the E1 corridor. UNRWA confirmed that Khan al-Ahmar is home to more than 700 Palestine Refugees. The community is one of 18 Bedouin and herding communities in the path of the E1 settlement expansion plan, with approximately 4,000 Palestinians across these 18 communities at risk of forced displacement. Community leaders reported high levels of fear and uncertainty among residents following the announcement of the imminent enforcement of demolition orders. A community leader in Khan al-Ahmar described the decision as "like an electric shock," noting that families had been living under the shadow of demolition orders for years and were unprepared to leave, with serious concerns about accessing health and education services post-displacement. Since 2009, OCHA has documented the demolition of approximately 550 structures across the 18 affected communities for lacking Israeli-issued building permits, including 175 donor-funded structures provided as humanitarian assistance.

On 1 June, Israeli authorities were set to invite bids from private companies to construct 3,400 new settlement units in the E1 area east of Jerusalem, a step that would effectively cut off occupied East Jerusalem from the rest of the occupied West Bank and further fragment Palestinian territory. Humanitarian partners have long warned that the E1 settlement plan would heighten the risk of forced displacement of Bedouin communities and have severe humanitarian consequences.

Also specifically relevant to the Jericho governorate area, on 25 May, the Israeli military, the Israeli Civil Administration, and the Jordan Valley Regional Council's lands inspection launched a large-scale confiscation operation of vehicles, tractors, and water tanks in firing zones 900, 901, 902, 903, and 904, stretching across al-Farsiya, al-Jiftlik, Khirbet Hamsa, and Ras el-Ahmar — all communities located in the northern Jordan Valley within the Jericho governorate. This operation directly affects the livelihoods of Palestinian communities in the area.

Medical Aid for Palestinians (MAP) reported that its mobile clinics had provided healthcare services to more than 33,000 Palestinians across 22 communities in the West Bank since 2025, particularly in isolated Area C communities affected by checkpoints, settlement expansion, and movement restrictions — conditions highly characteristic of communities in the Jericho and Jordan Valley area. Access to permanent health services in these areas is severely constrained, with mobile care often representing the only healthcare option for isolated communities.

Jerusalem

During the reporting period of 25 May 2026, OCHA documented several critical protection and displacement incidents specifically within Jerusalem governorate. On 12 May, Israeli forces opened fire toward two Palestinians attempting to scale the Barrier near Dahiyat al Bareed, in Jerusalem governorate, killing one Palestinian man and injuring another [1590][1589]. Since 7 October 2023 and as of 11 May 2026, OCHA has documented the killing of 19 Palestinians and the injury of over 290 others reportedly attempting to cross the Barrier, a trend directly affecting communities in Jerusalem governorate [1590][1589].

On 14, 15, and 16 May, during the annual Israeli "Jerusalem Day" and "Flag March" events, Israeli settlers and officials marched through the Old City of Jerusalem and several Palestinian neighbourhoods in East Jerusalem under Israeli forces' protection. Israeli forces erected barriers and restricted Palestinian movement and access, including to Al-Aqsa Mosque.

During these events, settlers assaulted Palestinians and damaged Palestinian-owned property including shops and homes. In the Silwan neighbourhood, a 16-year-old Palestinian boy was physically assaulted by settlers using a metal stick, sustaining facial fractures. In the Old City, two Palestinian shop owners were injured after settlers attacked their stores and sprayed them with pepper spray. According to local sources, Israeli forces also physically assaulted and arrested at least 20 Palestinians across the three-day events [1590][1589].

Regarding demolitions and displacement directly in East Jerusalem during the reporting period, Israeli authorities demolished structures resulting in the displacement of 15 people in East Jerusalem as part of a broader operation that displaced 26 people total across East Jerusalem and Area C [1590][1589]. On 13 May, a particularly significant demolition incident occurred in the Al Marwaha area of Beit Hanina, on the Jerusalem side of the Barrier, where the Israeli Civil Administration accompanied by Israeli forces demolished 12 structures in a single operation, including animal shelters, caravans, and storage and sales facilities for construction materials, affecting seven Palestinian households comprising 41 people including 23 children. The operation resulted in significant financial losses as affected families were unable to remove most materials and equipment beforehand [1589][1590].

Hundreds of Palestinians living in Area C of eastern Jerusalem governorate are at heightened risk of forced displacement following a decision by the Israeli Finance Minister instructing Israeli authorities to rapidly implement long-standing demolition orders against Khan al Ahmar. Bedouin community leaders reported high levels of fear and uncertainty among residents. Khan al Ahmar is among 18 Bedouin and herding communities comprising approximately 4,000 people directly affected by the EI settlement plan between East Jerusalem and Ma'ale Adumim settlement [1590][1589]. On 1 June 2026, Israeli authorities were set to invite bids for the construction of 3,400 new settlement units in the EI area east of Jerusalem, a move that humanitarian partners and international governments have long warned would further fragment the West Bank and sever East Jerusalem from the rest of the occupied Palestinian territory [1608][1598]. Since 2009, OCHA has documented the demolition of approximately 550 structures in the 18 affected communities, including 175 donor-funded structures provided as humanitarian assistance, as permits are nearly impossible for Palestinians to obtain [1589]. According to Medical Aid for Palestinians (MAP), the community already faces severely disrupted healthcare access due to movement restrictions and checkpoints, with mobile clinics serving as the primary lifeline for many isolated communities in the area [1598].

On 27 May 2026, Israeli forces detained a journalist from the Islamic Waqf Department and a woman near Hutta Gate, one of the entrances to Al-Aqsa Mosque. A journalist was also handed a one-week ban from the mosque compound and required to appear before Israeli intelligence. In the same reporting period, soldiers raided a house in the town of Anata within Jerusalem governorate, conducted a thorough search, and detained a resident [1601]. Separately, on 28 May, Israeli forces arrested a woman and a journalist near Bab Hutta gate leading to Al-Aqsa Mosque, and also raided the home of a young man from Anata northeast of Jerusalem [1604].

On 25 May, in Silwan's al-Bustan neighbourhood in occupied East Jerusalem, three bulldozers accompanied by police began further demolitions, with 57 of the neighbourhood's 115 homes already reduced to rubble in recent months according to Silwan activists [1592].

Concerning access to Al-Aqsa Mosque, tensions are also heightened by reports of an American-Israeli proposal to challenge Jordanian guardianship over the site, with Israeli far-right minister Itamar Ben Gvir having visited the compound in April 2026 demanding expanded Jewish access and prayer rights, prompting condemnation from Jordan and the Palestinian Authority [1575]. The UN Secretary-General separately condemned the decision of Israeli authorities to establish Israeli military facilities on the premises of the UNRWA compound in East Jerusalem, which was expropriated in January 2026, and urged Israel to rescind the decision and return the Sheikh Jarrah compound to the United Nations [1580].

Access to healthcare in East Jerusalem and surrounding communities remained severely constrained. According to WHO data cited in a 2025 report, 25% of scheduled appointments in the West Bank were missed due to movement restrictions, with the approval of permits for medical referrals to East Jerusalem or abroad reduced. Following Israel's ban on UNRWA that came into effect in early 2025, UNRWA's operations in East Jerusalem were prohibited or severely restricted, including health care, education, and humanitarian assistance services [1607].

Salfit

According to OCHA's Humanitarian Situation Report dated 25 May 2026, Israeli forces carried out prolonged raids in Salfit governorate during the reporting period, involving large-scale house searches, temporary takeover of Palestinian homes for military use, detentions, and reported physical assaults [1589][1590]. Israeli settlers also carried out multiple assaults on Palestinian homes and infrastructure across Salfit governorate, including physical assaults against Palestinians, attacks on homes while families and children were inside, damage to water and electricity infrastructure, theft and vandalism of agricultural property, and the destruction of olive trees and fencing [1589][1590]. A news article from Middle East Eye further reported on the establishment of a settler outpost called "Ora Yisrael" in Wadi Salfit, deep inside Area B, which prompted settler movement along dirt roads previously used by Palestinian residents and led to retaliatory attacks against Palestinian Bedouin families in the surrounding area [1585]. Additionally, in August 2025, Israel announced the inclusion of one Palestinian archaeological site in Salfit on its list of "Israeli archaeological sites," as part of a broader reclassification affecting thousands of sites across the West Bank, raising concerns about creeping annexation and the displacement of Palestinian communities from their land [1595].

Tubas

According to OCHA's Humanitarian Situation Report dated 25 May 2026, Israeli forces carried out prolonged raids in multiple governorates including Tubas, involving large-scale house searches, temporary takeover of Palestinian homes for military use, detentions, and reported physical assaults [1590][1589]. A specific protection concern in Tubas governorate was also documented in 2025: paramedics in the governorate were reported assaulted by Israeli settlers under the protection of the Israeli Defense Forces, according to the Safeguarding Health in Conflict Coalition's annual report [1607].

A critical development directly affecting connectivity to Tubas was reported around 20 May 2026. Israeli bulldozers demolished residential structures and animal shelters belonging to a Bedouin shepherd family in Ein el-Hilweh, located in the northern Jordan Valley. The family's lawyer had previously written to Israeli authorities invoking international law protections against forcible transfer in occupied territory, but received no response. Soldiers accompanied by a settler also prevented Red Crescent workers from delivering a tent to the displaced family and confiscated their vehicle. Ein el-Hilweh is described as the last remaining Palestinian community on Road 5799 – the only road that directly connects the northern Jordan Valley to Tubas – with three surrounding communities already fully displaced in 2026, representing a severe isolation risk for Tubas through the severing of this key access route [1592].

Gaza Strip

Gaza

The humanitarian situation in Gaza city and the broader Gaza governorate remains catastrophic as of late May 2026, marked by intensifying military operations, mass displacement, collapsing infrastructure, and acute food and health crises. According to OHCHR OPT, at least 26 Palestinians were killed across Gaza between 26 and 29 May 2026 – during the Eid al-Adha holiday – including six women and seven children. Three airstrikes on 26 May alone killed 12 people. One strike hit an apartment in the Al-Rimal neighbourhood of Gaza City, killing the newly appointed commander of Hamas's Al-Qassam Brigades along with his wife, his sons aged 15 and 22, his daughter aged 9, and a woman passerby. A separate strike on 27 May in central Gaza City killed at least ten people, including four girls, one boy, and three women [1663][1675]. Three Palestinians were also killed on a Friday afternoon after an Israeli drone targeted a civilian gathering at Al-Shawa Square in the Al-Tuffah neighbourhood, east of Gaza City [1642]. An attack on a police centre in the al-Tawam area north of Gaza City killed six people [1648].

According to Gaza's Ministry of Health, between 12 and 20 May, 24 Palestinians were killed, five bodies were retrieved, two died of wounds, and 159 were injured across Gaza. The cumulative toll since the ceasefire announced on 10 October 2025 reached 881 fatalities and 2,621 injuries as of 20 May, and subsequently rose to 922 killed and over 2,786 injured by late May, with the overall death toll since 7 October 2023 reaching nearly 73,000 [1660][1641][1671]. Since the ceasefire, at least 32 children and eight women have been killed in attacks where fatalities were exclusively women and children [1675][1663].

Between 16 and 17 May, humanitarian partners recorded the displacement of more than 150 families from eastern Gaza city, with families reporting they fled due to tank movements or bombing. Forty of these families were identified as requiring emergency assistance, having fled with only what they could carry, and a multi-partner response was initiated [1658][1660]. On 18 May, an airstrike hit Jabalya Camp, reportedly damaging 35 families' tents and tarpaulins and displacing dozens [1658][1660]. UNRWA reported that Israeli forces have issued multiple evacuation and shelter-in-place orders in areas including Gaza City, affecting UNRWA installations including a school-turned-shelter in Nuseirat hosting displaced people [1644].

Israeli Prime Minister Netanyahu announced that Israeli forces control approximately 60% of the Gaza Strip, with a directive to expand to 70%, which OHCHR OPT warned further contracts the area available to civilians and raises grave concerns about access to humanitarian assistance [1671][1669][1675]. The Gaza Centre for Human Rights warned that more than 2 million Palestinians are effectively concentrated within less than 10% of liveable space in Gaza, when accounting for rubble, uninhabitable zones, and militarily isolated areas [1640]. The so-called "yellow line" and newly imposed buffer zones, including an "orange line," have been pushed progressively westward, with Palestinian sources indicating Israeli control has extended by an additional 8–9% in recent months [1643][1636].

Regarding water and sanitation, UNICEF reported as of 29 May 2026 that water availability in Gaza averages only around 6 litres per person per day – compared to 145–310 litres in the US, Europe, and Israel. For 1.1 million children in Gaza, water remains a daily uncertainty. Up to 70% of families are unable to collect the minimum 6 litres per person per day, and 82% remain water insecure [1683][1657]. All water-trucking operations at the Al-Mansoura filling point in Gaza City have been suspended since 17 April following an incident in which two UNICEF-contracted truck drivers were killed; this filling station is critical for the daily drinking water access of 285,000 people, with UNICEF now trucking water from desalination plants at an additional cost of approximately USD 40,000 per day [1657]. Seawater desalination output fell from 20,000 m³/day in March to 16,000 m³/day due to chemical and spare part shortages [1657].

The Sheikh Radwan stormwater lagoon in Gaza City was shut down on 11 May to preserve generator lifespan, causing water and wastewater levels to rise significantly and raising the risk of flooding and serious public health threats in the coming weeks, according to the WASH Cluster [1658][1660]. Severe shortages of engine oil are disrupting critical WASH services across Gaza, with the WASH Cluster estimating approximately 7,000 litres per month are required [1658][1660].

To address pest infestations, WASH Cluster partners and local organizations, in coordination with UNDP, launched a response plan on 17 May targeting over 1,700 locations across Gaza, involving spraying, rodent control, and awareness raising. UNDP brought in 3 tonnes of rodenticides and 3,000 litres of pesticides, though partners warn that a full response requires Israeli authorities to facilitate access to Gaza's sanitary landfills, which remain inaccessible due to the presence of Israeli forces [1658][1660]. Displaced families are increasingly affected by skin infections and illnesses as rats and insects enter shelters and contaminate food [1660].

UNRWA medical surveillance teams continue to report an increase in ectoparasitic infections such as scabies, rodent bites, chickenpox, and acute watery diarrhoea among both children under five and adults. WHO's representative in the OPT stated that dire conditions in Gaza – continuing violence, rodent infestations, and spread of infectious disease – are being made worse by blockages of essential medical supplies, adding that "nobody can replace what UNRWA is doing." Nutrition partners observed a 21% increase in malnutrition admissions between January and April 2026 compared to the same period in 2025, despite the ceasefire [1644].

According to OCHA's 25 May 2026 humanitarian situation report, some 1.7 million people – approximately 354,480 households – are sheltering in approximately 1,600 displacement sites across Gaza, with nearly 88% residing in makeshift conditions [1658][1660]. Only half of all aid trucks from Egypt could offload at the Israeli-controlled Kerem Shalom Crossing in the first 18 days of May, with offloading rates at 81% between 11 and 17 May [1658]. Kerem Shalom and Zikim remain the only operational entry points for humanitarian and commercial goods [1658][1660].

According to the Gaza Ministry of Health, 250 Palestinians suffering kidney failure risk losing dialysis access, 11,000 diabetic patients face insulin shortages, and 110 Palestinians with haemophilia are without essential treatment. The healthcare system has seen 76% of medical imaging equipment destroyed, including all nine MRI units, with only five of 18 CT scanners functioning [1650]. Al-Aqsa Martyrs Hospital in Deir al-Balah – the only government hospital in the central Gaza Strip, serving over half a million residents and displaced persons – faces imminent generator failure due to high wear and critical shortages of spare parts, with the hospital's administration appealing to international institutions for an immediate and permanent electricity solution [1664].

On food security, WFP confirmed that approximately 1.6 million people in Gaza – around 77% of the population – are currently suffering from high levels of acute food insecurity. The World Central Kitchen (WCK) implemented a severe austerity package due to a funding crisis, dismissing over 500 employees, reducing daily cooked meals from 1 million to 200,000 (an 80% drop), and closing numerous community kitchens and distribution points. This directly impacts over 250,000 displaced families who depend on these meals as a sole food source. In Deir al-Balah, massive popular protests erupted in front of WCK distribution headquarters, with hundreds of displaced families, including widows, orphans, and elderly people, denouncing the aid cuts [1665]. One in five families in Gaza is eating only one snack per full day, with mothers reducing their own rations to feed their children [1665]. The UN's 2026 flash appeal seeks USD 4 billion for 3 million Palestinians in Gaza and the West Bank but has received only 12% of the required amount (approximately USD 490 million) to date [1665].

An airstrike on 29 May hit a residential area near five humanitarian facilities in Deir al-Balah in central Gaza, with no casualties reported; this followed an Israeli military order to shelter in place shortly before the strike. Between 11 and 17 May, mental health and psychosocial support services were provided to more than 10,000 people in shelters, camps, schools, and displacement sites, though OCHA warned that continuing these services – particularly for children – requires fuel, safe spaces, staff, and basic resources [1675]. In Deir al-Balah, an airstrike hit a residential square near Al-Aqsa Martyrs Hospital following an evacuation warning, destroying two houses and causing extensive damage to nearby homes, mosques, and civilian vehicles [1653]. In Khan Younis, Israeli aircraft shelled agricultural land and a vegetable market following an eviction warning, causing extensive destruction and injuries, and a separate strike hit a car in Al-Mawasi, Khan Younis, killing two men on 26 May [1653][1663].

North Gaza

On 12 May 2026, in Beit Lahia city within North Gaza governorate, an area near an MSF team was struck by two shells fired from an Israeli tank, injuring at least 12 people. The impact occurred approximately 400 metres from Al Tayeb Clinic, according to MSF East Africa [1679].

Israeli forces also launched strikes east of Jabalia refugee camp in northern Gaza at dawn during the Eid al-Adha period, with artillery shelling reported in the area [1662]. During the same period, an airstrike hit Jabalya Camp on 18 May, reportedly damaging 35 families' tents and tarpaulins and displacing dozens of them [1658][1660].

Separately, a Palestinian was shot by Israeli forces in the Salatin area west of Beit Lahia town in the north of the Strip [1636]. According to reports, others were shot at in this area as part of ongoing Israeli military activity targeting civilians in the northern part of the Strip [1636].

According to the CARE IN THE CROSSHAIRS 2025 report by the Safeguarding Health in Conflict Coalition, access to health care in North Gaza was severely affected by the IDF's use of explosives-laden robots deployed near health facilities in Jabalia refugee camp, as well as gun drones used near health facilities and ambulances [1676]. By the end of 2025, there were no functioning hospitals in North Gaza governorate – a complete absence that formed part of a broader collapse of Gaza's health system [1676]. This critical gap forced patients to rely on overwhelmed field hospitals established by international organizations, which themselves faced severe shortages of medical supplies, equipment, and fuel [1676].

Access constraints were particularly acute in northern Gaza throughout 2025, where attacks, displacement, and siege-like conditions severely limited access to health care and other essential services [1676]. The IDF's use of explosives-laden robots near Jabalia refugee camp further obstructed health care access for the local population [1676].

An attack on a police centre in the al-Tawam area, north of Gaza City, killed six people, with bodies reportedly found in a state of advanced mutilation and burns, further illustrating the extreme vulnerability of civilian infrastructure and personnel in the northern part of the Strip [1648]. A media report also described a four-year-old girl with broken arms whose parents were killed in a raid in the north of the sector, left to walk alone in the streets [1655].

Deir Al-Balah

During the period around Eid al-Adha (late May 2026), Deir al-Balah in central Gaza experienced a sharp escalation in violence, displacement, and humanitarian deterioration. According to UNRWA Situation Report #223 (covering 20–25 May 2026), Israeli forces issued multiple evacuation and shelter-in-place orders in areas west of the Israeli-militarised "Yellow Line," explicitly including Deir al-Balah [1644].

On Saturday, 31 May 2026, an Israeli drone strike targeting a group of civilians near Al-Aqsa Martyrs Hospital in Deir al-Balah killed a doctor who served as head of the anaesthesia department at Al-Yafa Medical Hospital in central Gaza, and injured three others including a child [1689][1688].

Arab News and Middle East Monitor reported this strike as a direct hit on the city of Deir al-Balah, with Israeli warplanes carrying out the attack [1641]. Separately, OCHA reported that on approximately 29 May (Thursday), an airstrike hit a residential area near five humanitarian facilities in Deir al-Balah, with no casualties reported but preceded by an Israeli military shelter-in-place order [1675].

Also in the days surrounding Eid al-Adha, an aerial attack struck a residential area near Al-Aqsa Martyrs Hospital following an evacuation warning, destroying two houses, causing extensive damage to nearby homes, mosques, and civilian vehicles, and resulting in injuries among the population [1653]. Al-Aqsa Martyrs Hospital, the only government hospital in the central governorate serving more than half a million residents and displaced persons from Gaza and the north, issued urgent warnings about potential generator shutdowns due to severe shortages of spare parts and high equipment wear, directly threatening the lives of hundreds of sick and wounded patients [1664].

Residents east of Deir al-Balah were also forcibly displaced by Israeli-backed armed militias operating near the Yellow Line. A resident from east of Deir al-Balah described how armed men affiliated with these militias entered the area and gave families until 10pm to evacuate their homes, taking only what they could carry, resulting in the near-complete emptying of the area [1681].

The humanitarian situation for the population sheltering in Deir al-Balah is severe. Displaced families from northern Gaza have been sheltering in the city, living in tents in conditions of extreme deprivation. Residents described being unable to afford basic goods – including new clothing for children – with the cost of a sacrificial lamb reaching approximately 13,000 shekels (around $5,000) during Eid al-Adha [1668][1685]. A displaced resident living in a tent west of Deir al-Balah described ongoing displacement, anxiety, and the absence of any of the pre-war holiday traditions [1685].

In response to the funding crisis facing World Central Kitchen (WCK), which cut its daily meals in Gaza by 80% – from 1 million to 200,000 meals – Deir al-Balah witnessed large popular protests and sit-ins in front of WCK distribution headquarters. Hundreds of displaced workers, widows, orphans, and elderly people participated, raising fears about the return of severe famine conditions experienced before the October 2025 ceasefire [1665].

According to UNICEF's WASH Situation Update dated 29 May 2026, UNICEF implemented a pilot household-level waste segregation initiative in four shelters specifically in Deir al-Balah and Al-Zawayda, achieving approximately a 15–20 per cent reduction in overall waste volume in those shelters [1683]. This initiative reflects the acute solid waste and sanitation crisis affecting displacement sites in the area, where displaced families are increasingly affected by skin infections and illnesses as rats and insects enter shelters and contaminate food [1658][1660].

Regarding the broader health care situation, the "Care in the Crosshairs" 2025 report noted that by 2025, attacks on health care in Deir al-Balah had been reducing compared to prior years, though the governorate had previously seen high concentrations of explosive drone incidents in 2024 [1676]. Despite this relative reduction, the Al-Aqsa Martyrs Hospital remains the sole government hospital for the entire central governorate and continues to face critical operational risks from infrastructure degradation and supply shortages [1664].

Khan Younis

Between 16 and 17 May 2026, humanitarian partners recorded the displacement of more than 150 families from eastern Khan Younis, with affected families reporting they fled due to tank movements or bombing. According to OCHA, 40 of the newly displaced families were identified as requiring emergency assistance, having fled with only what they could carry, and a multi-partner response was initiated [1658][1660][1648].

Israeli forces also demolished residential buildings in eastern Khan Younis throughout the week of 19–25 May, compounding displacement pressures in the area [1650]. Israeli artillery shelling targeted areas east and south of Khan Younis city on the morning of 31 May, while a separate artillery strike targeted the eastern neighbourhoods of Khan Younis around the same period [1689][1687].

During the Eid al-Adha period (around 26–27 May), multiple lethal incidents were recorded in Khan Younis. On 26 May, an Israeli airstrike hit a car in al-Mawasi, Khan Younis, killing two men, according to OHCHR [1669][1671]. A separate Israeli strike on a vehicle in Khan Younis killed two Palestinians, and separately, Israeli naval vessels opened fire toward the coast of Khan Younis, with no immediate reported casualties [1686][1693]. An Israeli airstrike on an internally displaced persons camp in Mawasi Khan Younis killed a woman and a girl, and injured more than 20 people; a girl later died of her wounds [1653]. In the al-Maslakh al-Turki area of Khan Younis, a Palestinian woman was injured by Israeli gunfire in the early hours of the day as tents sheltering displaced people came under fire, with the injured taken to Nasser Hospital [1686][1693]. Additionally, on 25 May, a 14-year-old girl died of serious injuries sustained in an Israeli bombing of the Mawasi Khan Younis area, having been among those wounded in a strike on internally displaced persons' tents at the "Gith" camp in the Mawasi area west of Khan Younis, where the same shelling killed another girl and a woman and injured 30 others, most of them children and women, according to sources cited by Anadolu Agency [1686][1655][1677][1690].

In the agricultural domain, Israeli forces shelled agricultural land and a vegetable market in Khan Younis following an evacuation warning, causing extensive destruction and injuries [1653]. The agricultural lands and greenhouses of Khan Younis, which once supplied more than 40 percent of the entire Strip's daily domestic food needs, have been largely destroyed; the UN Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO) reports that less than five percent of Gaza's agricultural land remains usable. In the Shakoush area, Israeli bulldozers razed greenhouses and confiscated topsoil, directly exacerbating food insecurity [1652]. A Palestinian journalist in Khan Younis described scenes of people returning from soup kitchens with empty pots and many families unable to secure any food, warning that a famine could emerge at any moment [1652].

Hamad City in Khan Younis, a residential complex built with Qatari funding comprising 53 buildings and approximately 3,000 housing units that previously housed over 15,000 people – primarily low-income families displaced by previous conflicts – has been reduced to rubble, surrounded by displaced families [1652]. The Sheikh Mohammed cemetery in the Maan area of Khan Younis has been erased and replaced by an Israeli military outpost, according to satellite imagery updated to February 25, 2026 [1652].

In terms of humanitarian response, UNRWA on 20 May began operating a new Temporary Learning Space (TLS) at a displacement site south of Khan Younis — the first TLS established in a location without any operational UNRWA installations. Within one week, 1,600 children registered in the new TLS, which is made up of multiple tents [1644]. Partners also installed 115 emergency shelters in Gaza and Khan Younis using Shelter Cluster Emergency Shelter Kit designs and specifications between 11 and 17 May [1658][1660].

Displaced residents in Khan Younis city continue to live in torn tents inside overcrowded shelters, with reports of families — including widows who lost their breadwinners — struggling to secure food amid the collapse of livelihoods and health services [1667]. In Khan Younis, residents gathered for Eid al-Adha prayers amid destroyed buildings, with displaced persons describing conditions of ongoing human suffering and loss [1680][1691]. A resident of Khan Younis described the situation starkly, questioning where people were expected to go given there was no room left [1684].

Rafah

As of late May 2026, Rafah governorate remains one of the most severely affected areas in the Gaza Strip, with its urban landscape largely erased following sustained Israeli military operations. According to Al Jazeera, satellite imagery confirms that southern Rafah has been almost entirely flattened, with only faint outlines of streets visible amid debris. The Swedish village in Rafah — a coastal community of roughly 1,300 people founded in 1965 with international assistance to shelter Palestinian refugees and historically dependent on fishing — has been systematically destroyed and converted into an Israeli military outpost, with only five houses left standing [1652].

The Rafah border crossing, previously the sole lifeline connecting Gaza to Egypt, has had its civilian infrastructure — including passenger departure and arrival halls, a VIP terminal, a humanitarian logistics facility, and administrative offices — replaced by heavily fortified Israeli military observation posts and razor wire [1652]. Between 11 and 17 May 2026, partners supported the medical evacuation of 59 patients, including six children, to Egypt via Rafah Crossing, alongside 87 caregivers, indicating the crossing retains limited humanitarian functionality [1658][1660]. Since the reopening of the Rafah border and as of 14 May, 2,429 returnees from Egypt have been assisted by protection partners, with 885 currently receiving follow-up protection services [1660][1658].

The agricultural lands and greenhouses of Rafah and Khan Younis formerly constituted Gaza's food basket, producing the vast majority of the territory's fresh vegetables and supplying more than 40 percent of the Strip's daily domestic food needs. According to the UN Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), less than five percent of Gaza's agricultural land remains usable, and in the Shakoush area Israeli bulldozers have razed greenhouses and confiscated topsoil, directly exacerbating food insecurity [1652]. Israeli battleships were also reported firing at the coast of Rafah and Khan Younis during the reporting period, though no injuries were reported in that specific incident [1686].

By the end of 2025, the Rafah governorate had a complete absence of functioning hospitals, with no hospitals operational in either North Gaza or Rafah, according to a 2025 report by the Safeguarding Health in Conflict Coalition [1676]. The collapse of health infrastructure, combined with mass displacement, overcrowded makeshift shelters, poor sanitation, and restricted medical supply access, has created severe public health risks in southern Gaza including the spread of acute respiratory infections, hepatitis A, skin conditions, and mental health disorders [1676]. Solid waste management in southern Gaza continues to rely on temporary dump sites located near active displacement sites, with access to sanitary landfills near Gaza's perimeter blocked due to Israeli forces' deployment [1658]. Partners indicate that a full pest-control response requires Israeli authorities to facilitate access to Gaza's landfills where waste can be safely disposed of [1658][1660]. Displaced families are increasingly affected by skin infections and other illnesses as rats and insects enter shelters and contaminate food [1658].
