

Reporting Sexual Violence

Monthly News Brief

June 2026

This News Brief bears testimony to the brave survivors who speak about sexual violence by state bodies or conflict actors. Most events of violence are never reported. This compilation is neither complete nor representative of the extent or nature of sexual violence in general. It brings together dispersed accounts about survivors from around the world who broke the silence.

Developments in June 2026

Chad: As reported in June 2026, an internal investigation by Médecins Sans Frontières (MSF) revealed widespread sexual exploitation and abuse of Sudanese refugee women and underage girls by local and international staff. Survivors were reportedly coerced into exchanging sex for food, water, employment, and other basic necessities. The findings highlight the heightened vulnerability of displaced women and girls to sexual exploitation by humanitarian personnel and underscore the urgent need for robust safeguarding measures, survivor-centred reporting and support mechanisms, and accountability to prevent and respond to sexual exploitation and abuse in humanitarian settings. See Chad section for more details.

Data collected by Insecurity Insight shows that these incidents are not isolated. Cases of aid workers abusing their positions to sexually exploit and abuse people in their care have been publicly reported in Burkina Faso, the DRC and Sudan over several years and across different humanitarian settings. Reported abuses include demands for sex in exchange for food, shelter, aid registration or access to humanitarian assistance, particularly affecting displaced women and girls living in camps or other precarious conditions. Available reporting has implicated both national and international humanitarian staff, including employees of UN agencies and international NGOs, highlighting that sexual exploitation and abuse is not confined to individual organisations or emergency responses. These incidents demonstrate how unequal power dynamics, dependence on humanitarian assistance and weak accountability mechanisms can create opportunities for exploitation, particularly during large-scale displacement crises.

Myanmar: In June 2026, reports from Magway, Bago, and Chin indicate a pattern of conflict-related sexual violence by Myanmar military and Military Council personnel against women, underscoring the continued use of sexual violence as a tool of intimidation and abuse in conflict-affected areas. In Magway region, military personnel reportedly raped and killed an unspecified number of women during a prolonged military raid in Pakokku township, raped two women during a military operation in Salin township, and raped another woman in Chauk township. In Bago region, a 28-year-old woman who had been forcibly conscripted as a cook for the military was reportedly raped and killed by military personnel. In Chin state, a woman was reportedly subjected to an attempted rape at gunpoint by a Military Council member after being forcibly removed from her home. These incidents highlight the heightened vulnerability of women and girls in areas affected by military operations and reinforce urgent calls for accountability, survivor-centred support services, and strengthened protection measures. See Myanmar section for more details.

Data collected by Insecurity Insight shows that since the military coup on 01 February 2021 and 04 June 2026, at least 73 publicly reported incidents of conflict-related sexual violence were recorded across 15 states and regions. Nearly 25% of incidents were reported in Sagaing region. Approximately 66% of incidents were attributed to the Myanmar military. Women and children were most frequently subjected to sexual violence and abuse in their homes, with members of the Myanmar military identified as the primary perpetrators.
